WILL SINK ARMED SHIPS

Cologne Gazette Declares New Policy Will Be Enforced in Week; Germany Drafts Reply to U. S.

Berlin, via Amsterdam, February 19.—A warning to "reckless, crazy neutrals" that they cannot expect to travel in safety on armed English merchant ships appeared today in the Cologne Gazette, coincident with the announcement that final instructions for the guidance of Ambassador von Bernstorff in the submarine controversy with the United States have been drafted.

These instructions for Bernstorff were prepared by the officials of the American Division of the Foreign Office. They go to Foreign Secretary von Jagow and to Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg for approval, and will then be forwarded to Washington.

It is expected that by Tuesday the representative of the German government in the American capital will have received these instructions, and on that or the following day he will again take up the Lusitania matter with Secretary of State Lansing.

The German press is again taking marked interest in the Lusitania issue and the general submarine question, particularly with reference to the sinking of armed merchantmen. The Cologne Gazette says today:

"Negotiations with America are incomplete, but within a week our submarine war against armed merchantmen begins. We will allow nobody to curtail our right nor will we bother about the safety of reckless, crazy neutrals traveling on English ships.

"He who sits upon a gunpowder barrel with a lighted cigar in his

Estimate 568 Ships Sunk by Submarines

Berlin, Feb. 19.—Captain Persius, famous German naval expert, states in the Berliner Tageblatt that up to the end of November German submarines had sunk 568 ships with a total tonnage of 1,079,402.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS.

Rome, Feb. 19.—A protest was lodged today by the Greek government against the landing of Italian troops at Corfu, the Tribuna says. Fifty Italian caribineers were landed at Corfu yesterday, which led to the protest. There is already a heavy force of French troops at Corfu.

Amsterdam, Feb. 19.—The export of fruits into Germany from Holland has been forbidden.

Copenhagen, Feb. 19.—German papers that reached here today state that the allies are preparing to occupy several more Greek ports.

Stockholm, Feb. 19.—Export of coffee from Sweden is prohibited by a government decree issued today.

Petrograd, Feb. 19.—Tiflis dispatches report that the Turks are preparing to evacuate Trebizond and already have begun the removal of stores.

Rome, Feb. 19.—Durazzo, capital of Albania, is surrounded on three sides by Austro-Hungarians, and is expected to fall under fire of the big guns which the invaders are moving forward.

Pope Benedict Is Ill With Grippe, Rome Announces

Rome, Feb. 19.—It became known that Pope Benedict for the last two weeks has been suffering from a slight attack of grippe. Until today it was only known in Vatican circles.

The Pontiff has shown great courage and fortitude in continuing his audiences almost without interruption throughout his illness. His physicians were unable to persuade the Pope to remain confined to his room and to cancel appointments made in advance, as he was unwilling to disappoint his callers.

Find 6 Bombs in Remington Plant, 8,000 in Danger

By International News Service.

Bridgeport, Ct., Feb. 19.—The finding of six bombs in the plant of the Remington Arms & Ammunition Company here, it is reported today, circumvented a well-laid plot to destroy the plant. Had the bombs exploded the lives of 8,000 employes would have been seriously endangered.

Every precaution is being taken to keep full details of the alleged plot from becoming public. In the meantime, agents of the Department of Justice, assisted by detectives employed by the Remington Company, are making an investigation.

From reliable sources it is definitely learned that the company suspects German agents. Protective forces in the big plant have been urged to redouble precaution.

POISONER DISOWNED BY 'REDS'

Emma Goldman and Other Anarchist Leaders Declare Crones Is a Dangerous Madman

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 19.—Jean Crones, the Anarchist who is being sought for poisoning scores at a banquet given to Archbishop Mundelein in Chicago, was repudiated today by Anarchist leaders in New York city. As a result of declarations made by Emma Goldman, Ben Reitman and Alexander Berkman, the police are confident that if the fugitive seeks a refuge among the "Reds" he will be betrayed into the power of the detectives now hunting him.

That Crones is a murderous maniac following the impulses of his own disordered mentality is the belief not only of Miss Goldman, but also of Reitmann and Berkman.

In the ceaseless efforts to round up Crones, who has goaded them to their greatest activity by his taunts of their inefficiency, the police today sent out a new and more accurate description of the alleged poisoner. This was obtained from Chicago detectives after the supposed Crones had sent a third letter to a newspaper here advising the police to "take a correspondence course."

That was how Crones got his knowledge of chemistry that enabled him, he said, to slip barium chloride into the soup served to the Catholic dignitaries in Chicago.

"It is to laugh," Emma Goldman said today, regarding the frantic police hunt for Crones.

"The man is not an anarchist. He is a lunatic. I do not know him and he is unknown to my associates. So far as I know he never has been affiliated with our people either here or in Chicago. If the letters were written by him and not by a crank, as I suspect, he is just having fun with the police. Murderers do not advertise the fact in advance."

Reitman and Berkman were as positive as Miss Goldman that Crones never had been affiliated with them.

While the detectives under Captain Tunney, acting head of the police bomb squad, were scouring New York today in an effort to take Crones "dead or alive" before he fulfilled his latest threat to quit the city by Sunday night, policemen were on guard at St. Patrick's Cathedral in Fifth avenue and at the homes of Archbishop Farley, Monsignor Francis J. Lavelle and other Catholic prelates.

URGE FAHEY TO HEAD NEW TARIFF BOARD

Washington, Feb. 19.—John H. Fahey, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, is already being boomed for chairman of the new tariff board, legislation for the creation of which is pending in Congress. It is stated that President Wilson believes the experience Mr. Fahey has gained as the head of the big national trade body, added to his experience as a business man and newspaper publisher, has fitted him for the position.

ANNUL HER RUNAWAY MATCH

Jessie Orr, Legally Released from Edgar Buffum, Who is Declared by New Jersey Court as Insane

The marriage of Miss Jessie Orr, the East Weymouth choir singer who eloped in 1910 with Edgar Buffum of Newark, N. J., despite the efforts of his family, was formally annulled by Vice-Chancellor Foster of Newark, on the ground that Buffum was insane when the ceremony was performed.

Miss Orr, in her testimony in the suit to annul her runaway marriage, told for the first time her version of her flight with Buffum, their pursuit by Buffum's sister and uncle, and their marriage, finally, in Newark, by Mayor Haussling.

She declared that Buffum had actually kidnaped her, and that her marriage to him was the only way she saw out of her dilemma. She admitted that his actions at times seemed strange, but declared that she had no idea that he was insane until the September following her sensational elopement in June.

SAID HE KIDNAPED HER.

She declared that Buffum forced her to accompany him to Boston, June 5, 1910, and to register with him as his wife in a hotel. Close on their heels were Buffum's relatives, who tried to rescue her.

Buffum, she said, locked the door of the room, after forcing a plain gold ring on her finger and making her declare to his uncle that she had already married him. Then, she declared, his relatives apparently gave up their plans, and left them in the hotel.

The next day they went to Newark, she testified, and she married him as the only way left her after her experience. As soon as she learned the real cause for her husband's fits of temper, she returned to her parents in East Weymouth.

Buffum, at present, is an inmate of the Morris Plains Insane Asylum. According to Dr. Britton Evans, he is a victim of dementia praecox, an incurable form of insanity.

RELEASED BY SISTER.

Buffum is the son of a well-to-do Newark man. He had been employed in the courthouse in Newark until 1908, when he was first stricken. His sudden frenzy led to his incarceration in an insane asylum.

His release was secured by his sister, who promised to have him sent to East Weymouth to his uncle's farm. Buffum accordingly went to Weymouth, becoming acquainted with Miss Orr in December, 1909. She was twenty-eight years old, and was well known through her ability as a singer. Buffum was about twenty-two.

He began to pay attentions to her, although every effort was made by his uncle to prevent him. They had a suspicion of his plans, however, and almost succeeded in frustrating them. Accompanied by the Buffum family physician they pursued the couple to their hotel in Boston, but were too late, they thought, after Buffum and Miss Orr told them the ceremony had already been performed.

Miss Orr returned to Weymouth, and is now soloist at the Old North Church in North Weymouth.

ANALYSIS SHOWS CAUSE

Coroner's Expert Says Marian Lambert Was Slain or Committed Suicide in Helm's Woods Park

Chicago, Feb. 19.—The attack and defence in the poison tragedy of Marian Lambert and the murder charge against William H. Orpet, the University of Wisconsin student, lined up in new formation today, based upon the report of Dr. Ralph Webster that cyanide of potassium killed the Lake Forest high school girl.

The defence maintains that the report from the chemical analysis supports the theory that the girl committed suicide, while the State says the report strengthens the murder charge.

The points now put forth by the defence are:

1—Cyanide of potassium crystals were found under Marian Lambert's finger nails.

2—The poison in her stomach was the same.

3—This shows that the girl, to get the poison under her nails, put her fingers down into a box, bottle or other container, indicating a voluntary action.

4—Voluntary action disposes of a theory of force or murder.

MARRIAGE IN PERU COSTLY FOR POOR

Panama, Feb. 19.—Marriage as an institution is weaker in Peru and other countries on the west coast of South America than in any other Christian land, according to a report delivered at the Congress on Religious Work in Latin America in Peru, according to one missionary, "marriage is considered a luxury for the rich." Even civil marriage is costly. The poor regard it as almost impossible.

4 FAMILIES FLEE WEST END BLAZE

Four families were driven to the street today by a fire in the four-story brick building at No. 8 Wall street, West End. The family of Michael Purrio lived on the ground floor. Their apartment suffered most heavily from the fire. The police set the damage at $400.

ERZERUM DEAD FILL FORTS

THE GREAT TURKISH BATTLEGROUND—The map shows Erzerum and the road taken by the fleeing Turkish army toward Sivas, its next stronghold to the west. Trebizond, too, is threatened by the Russians. Distances which separate the Czar's victorious forces from the "back door to Constantinople" and from the beleaguered British forces on the lower Tigris are indicated.

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Feb. 19.—In anticipation of the complete occupation of Eastern Armenia by Russian troops, the Turkish government is preparing to evacuate Trebizond, the important Ottoman port on the Black Sea. A dispatch from Tiflis states that the removal of Turkish stores from Trebizond has already begun and that Armenians dwelling in that city are being slain by the scores.

In the meantime, fighting between Russian troops and that part of the Erzerum garrison which escaped when the Turkish fortress fell is still in progress west of Erzerum.

Before the routed Turkish soldiers were rallied terrific losses were inflicted by Russian Cossacks, but owing to additional reinforcements which the Turks have received the Russians have now checked the pursuit to consolidate the gains they have made.

When the advance at once more resumed progress will necessarily be slow, owing to the mountainous region west of Erzerum. In this region there are but a few routes that can be used and these are almost impassable.

A Russian War Office communication says:

"The completeness of the defeat sustained by the Turks and the terrible losses they suffered in the Erzerum fighting are becoming more and more clear. The forts in the fortresse itself and in the surrounding country are full of Turkish dead.

"The remnants of the Turkish army chased by our troops are fleeing in disorder, at many points in different directions. A severe snow storm has failed to curb the ardor of our men in pursuit, who are close on the heels of the enemy and are annihilating them or taking prisoners at the tail ends of Turkish columns.

"We captured in Erzerum the entire fortress artillery and a large part of the enemy's field artillery. Up to the present we have counted 200 guns. We have taken a huge quantity of artillery ammunition and arms, several war motor cars, wireless apparatus and a pontoon park. The number of other trophies taken and of the Turkish soldiers captured in the vast region of Erzerum are being tabulated.

BUT SLIGHT LOSSES.

"The troops of the Caucasus army notwithstanding the supreme efforts demanded of them in the ceaseless fighting for over a month in most difficult geographical conditions, have suffered but slight losses, and are ready for fresh exploits when their sovereign chief gives the order.

"Black Sea. Our warships have continued their operations in the coast region. West of Trebizond permanent bridges have been demolished and fifteen sailing ships destroyed.

"In the Caucasus coast region our troops have dislodged the enemy from a series of positions and captured prisoners, arms, munitions and engineering material."

The Turks evidently had prepared for a long struggle and had turned Erzerum (pronounced Er-ze-room) into the main provisioning centre in Asia Minor. In addition, the city contained countless air fortifications, by descriptions.

The Russian press believes the collapse of the Turkish defence in Armenia will end Germany's efforts to inspire a Mussulman fanaticism against Russia and then against their German allies, may prevent the proposed German campaign against the Suez Canal and Egypt.

The capture of Trebizond, according to the newspapers, will be one of the immediate results of the Russian victory.

COTTON MEN HEAR WAR IS TO END SOON

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The European war will soon be over, according to information given cotton States representatives in Congress who conferred with State Department officials. Representatives Heflin of Alabama and Howard of Georgia, after calling at the department, issued a statement saying:

"Secretary Lansing suggested that we needed more shipping for the transportation of cotton, and he thought the situation in this regard would be better soon.

"The opinion prevails in the department that the European war will not last much longer, and in view of that event, cotton would bring a good price. One of the officials of the department said if the producers will hold on to his cotton he is sure to get a better price."

BOMBS ON LINER SAILING FROM U. S.

Madrid, Feb. 19.—Two dynamite bombs were found in the hold of the British steamship Rosebank, bound to English ports from Philadelphia with a cargo of coal, according to Valencia dispatches received here.

The bombs were sufficiently powerful to blow the vessel to pieces had they exploded.

The Rosebank left Philadelphia on January 22 under command of Captain Walworth with a cargo of coal valued at $17,000.

Peace Now, or More Frightfulness, Allies Warned by Harden

Berlin, Feb. 19.

MAXIMILIAN HARDEN, in an extraordinary article in his paper, Die Zukunft, depicts Germany as unwilling to be compelled to lay waste fresh areas of the world and redouble her triumph of death, but as no longer able to be content with as interminable defensive. The article says in part:

Six months ago the Germans could be content with defence, holding and using what they had conquered. Now it is too late.

Can we wait until the enemy has spied out every feature of our economic, military and war economic, and then creeps upon us a state of want which at present is falsely reported?

A third harvest would be more difficult than the second. It would be difficult to make good our supplies, not of men but of important raw materials, and our expenditure of money would increase immediately.

But if Great Britain is yearning for proof that we cannot wound her heart with submarines and air craft, and if she will not discuss peace until this has been proved, the United States must recede itself to the conviction that no further hesitations will cripple our submarine war, and PARIS OR STRIPES WILL PROTECT A SHIP IN THE WAR ZONE.

We are not tired, for afraid, and nineteen months of war have not paled our resolution. A worthy and honorable peace would be welcome; but this enfeebling of the Germans' power to strike, NEVER.

MAY BREAK CUSHING SECRET ATTACKS TROTH WILSON

Providence, R. I., Feb. 19.—Steps will be taken to annul the secret marriage in New York of Julius H. Preston, Jr., son of a wealthy commission merchant of this city, to Miss Alice Nightingale, 23, whose two previous marital adventures have been shattered by the courts.

The father of the young man has retained Davis G. Arnold as attorney, and has taken the first steps toward an annulment of the marriage of his son. Young Preston has sailed for France to join a hospital corps.

The annulment will be sought on the ground that Preston junior is not yet of legal age and that under the laws of New York he is not legally entitled to make a marriage contract.

SECURED DIVORCE.

Mrs. Preston is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Nightingale, who are well known in East Side society of this city.

When she was Miss Nightingale, she was married in New York to a Providence man named Hubbard. Soon after this marriage was annulled.

February 1, 1912, when by the birth records she was 22 years old and by her declaration in the Preston indictment only 19 years old, she was married to Roger Case, also of the city.

Later she obtained a divorce from Case on the ground of neglect to provide. The divorce, heard entirely on deposition in the Superior Court for Kent county, became fully effective Sept. 25, 1915.

Before the Case divorce became effective, she met young Preston. His parents objected to the attachment and sent him to Bayonne, N. J., to work for the Standard Oil Company. In January of this year she went to New York and notified young Preston where he could find her.

The marriage was performed at No. 203 West 83d street, New York city, the witnesses were Robert N. Stewart and Lydia C. Warren, on that day she wrote a few friends telling them that she had been married, but on her return the following day she denied it, and said the story must have been a joke.

When the report of the marriage began to creep about the city several days ago, she wrote to young Preston, advising him to suppose any attempt to annul the ceremony which might be made She told him that she had decided the wedding, and that the return would not be filed by the clergyman.

When the license for the marriage was taken out, young Preston said he was twenty-one and lived in Massachusetts. She declared that she also came from Massachusetts and said she had been married before. Young Preston's birth is recorded in the city as occurring on February 27, 1895, making him nearly eighteen.

"The conscience of the American people has been deadened by the vacillating policy of President Wilson," declared Grafton D. Cushing (Ind.) in outlining the fight that will be made in this State to elect Roosevelt delegates to the Republican national convention.

"When the Lusitania was sunk and American lives were lost a wave of indignation spread through the country," he continued, "but it quickly passed. It has now developed into a quibble on words. Whether the word shall be 'illegal' or 'unjustifiable' seems to be the only concern of the administration.

"The belligerent nations sink one ship and then another and our administration drifts along. But there will be a crisis. It is not unlikely that we are drifting into war.

"We sit in our easy chairs, unmoved. Times are prosperous and we are concerned only in making money. American lives are snuffed out in Mexico or across the seas, the other nations realize that our word doesn't amount to that," with a snap of the fingers, "and there is nobody in the administration at Washington who seems strong enough to reawaken our deadened sense of patriotism.

POLICY OF DO-NOTHING.

"Mexican soldiers invaded an American home in Mexico. While the mother was cooking dinner for them they shot through the breast. When she lay there dying, the Mexicans attacked her daughter. Her young son ran in and hid under a bed. They dragged him out and killed him.

"We asked Bryan what he was going to do about it. He did nothing. The President did nothing.

"The President's cabinet has gradually fallen away from him. The strongest men have refused to quit. The President didn't take up preparedness until he was driven into it.

"The strength of Roosevelt's strength in the chair we would be farther from war than we are today. The conscience of the American people would be quickened. The flag would wave once something. The other nations would know that America means what she says.

"Those," he said, "are some of the reasons why we believe that Roosevelt should be elected."

HUGHES AND ROOT.

He was asked about Justice Hughes.

"There are three men in this country competent to be President," he said. "They are Roosevelt, Hughes and Root. Hughes could be more easily nominated and elected, but I have confidence in Roosevelt. I know where he stands. We know what his policies are. Roosevelt can be elected. Root could not be elected if he were nominated."

"Do you want you to consider this thought also," he resumed. "Mr. Wilson said that the Belgium war was violated he, if he were President, would draw at once called a congress of the neutral nations to uphold the Hague agreement and would have demanded a settlement of the case, then and there. I am ready to wager that if Mr. Wilson had done so the war would have been taken a different aftertother. It is quite possible that the war would have quickly ceased."

Mr. Cushing said that the Hird-Cushing - Gardner - Washburn ticket, now known as the Young Guard, will begin at once a vigorous campaign in this State. Headquarters will be opened in Boston, Wednesday, and Roosevelt will be put into every district, he said. The campaign will be waged on political issues.

"YOUNG GUARD CAMPAIGN."

"We are not afraid of the 'Old Guard,'" he declared. "We believe that the Republican voters should have a chance to express their preference for President. We believe they do not want to elect unpledged delegates without knowing whether those delegates would vote for—

"Do you think Governor McCall could defeat President Wilson?" he was asked.

"I do not," he replied.

"You would be surprised," he added, "if you knew how this movement in Massachusetts has crystallized sentiment for Roosevelt throughout the country. It was started by us, without Mr. Roosevelt's knowledge, for that purpose, and it has been decided-ly successful.

Mr. Cushing said that he, if elected, would go to the Republican convention to vote for Roosevelt, and would continue to vote for him until it seemed "unreasonable" to vote for him longer.

"I will support the convention nominee," he said. "I am not a bolter."

"It would be nice," he concluded, "if Hughes, Borah, Weeks, McCall, the other nominal candidates would put tickets in the field in this State. Then people would know for whom they were voting."

Former Speaker John N. Cole of the House of Representatives and former Councilor Herbert M. Fletcher of Westford have announced their candidacy as unpledged delegates in the Eighth Congressional district. They both are friendly to Governor McCall.

MERRY MOTLEY AT SLATTERY MASQUE

Cap and bells, Pierrot and Pierette, Charley Chaplin, Carmen, Pagliacci, Buster Brown, and all the merry motley, even the ubiquitous Uncle Sam, lit the bal masque of the E. T. Slattery Associates last evening in the Louis Sasse salon of the store building.

Many very unusual and original costumes were on the floor, showing that in play as in business this company of people believes in something distinctive. There was plenty of diverting mad candi entertainment as well as refreshments and dancing.

Twelve handsome prizes, given by P. A. O'Connell, president of the E. T. Slattery Company, were distributed by Mrs. O'Connell. Felicitous remarks were made by Mr. O'Connell and P. C. J. Eraenor, general manager.

WAR SUMMARY

The Turkish official report says "nothing important in the Caucasus" under date of yesterday, and we are yet to receive from Constantinople a second version of the fall of Erzerum.

But Petrograd dispatches are steadily minimizing the importance of that victory. The first dispatches estimated the captures as 100,000 men and 1,000 guns. Latest dispatches say that 1,500 men were captured in the forts that were stormed, say nothing of any captures in the main fortress, and add that the fortress had been equipped with 300 new Krupp guns and that it is hoped these have been captured. Another dispatch says the Erzerum booty was "enormous."

Meanwhile, official reports tell of pursuit of the Turks west of the fortress, of the arrival of Turkish reinforcements, and of the halting of the pursuit to "consolidate the Russian gains."

The true story of Erzerum seems yet to be told, and its real significance yet to be determined.

In Albania, Durazzo is three-fourths surrounded, and its capture seems a matter of a few days at most. Avlona will probably be attacked before Salonica is menaced.

There were a number of peace rumors yesterday and today. Germany has asked France to make peace. Bulgaria has offered to make peace, and is pleading with Rumania not to attack her. And many other similar stories.

On the western front allied attempts to recapture ground taken by the Germans in their recent drive have failed, Berlin reports.

German papers report mutinies by Hindoo troops in India, with the killing of English officers.

An attempt to overthrow the French Ministry failed yesterday, the Ministry receiving a vote of confidence, 394 to 169. The adverse vote indicates a strong party hostile to the conduct of the war by the Briand administration, and this group may eventually make trouble.

Rumania is again reported about to intervene in the war.

The United States will not accept the doctrine that an armed merchant vessel is subject to being sunk without warning. Sweden will accept this doctrine. Official notice has been sent out by this government that it considers ships have a right to be armed for defence, while Sweden has issued a warning to Swedish citizens to keep off armed ships.

This leaves to the submarine commander two alternatives:

1—He may sink the armed ship without warning and risk giving offence to the United States. Or—

2—He may rise to the surface to warn the armed ship and be sunk himself.

TURKISH PRINCE SLAIN FOR WAR DISTRUST

By GEORGE J. STEVENS.

Special to the International News Service and London Daily Telegraph.

Athens, Feb. 19.—The killing during battle of the Greek Crown Prince, Yushuf Izzedin, have been given me by a reliable correspondent in Constantinople.

The assassination occurred at 7 o'clock in the morning at the Prince's temporary palace at Zinzirkuju. The body was found lying on the floor of the passage leading from the harem to the bathroom. It was bathed in blood, the veins of the left arm were open and on the body were several black marks, suggesting that a struggle preceded the forcible opening of the veins. In the harem was a white cloth, evidently used as a gag.

The Prince's cries and struggles are to have been heard by the women of the harem and the domestics, who, however, did not intervene, prevented the assassins from clearing away the traces of the crime before the flight.

Soon after the murder the women and the domestics were taken away by the conspirators.

The Crown Prince mistrusted the official communiques telling of victories, and always tried to find out the truth. In the recent Crown Council the Prince threw the blame for the deplorable state of the country on the Young Turks, and advised conclusion of a separate peace to save the empire from ruin.

His death was decided on immediately after his counsel, according to my correspondent.

Three days before the assassination the Prince, talking to a prominent member of the Committee of Union and Progress, said:

"The time is approaching when the nation will be driven by suffering and hunger to rise and hang you all, myself included."

PARIS HEARS OF NEW GERMAN PEACE OFFER

Paris, Feb. 19.—There is reason to believe that Germany has made new peace proposals of the entente allies. The report is that Germany has declared its willingness to re-establish generally the status before the war, to cede part of Lorraine to France and guarantee autonomy for Alsace.

The assumption occurred at 7 o'clock in the morning at the Prince's temporary palace at Zinzirkuju. The body was found lying on the floor of the passage leading from the harem to the bathroom. It was bathed in blood, the veins of the left arm were open and on the body were several black marks, suggesting that a struggle preceded the forcible opening of the veins. In the harem was a white cloth, evidently used as a gag.

New Demands on Germany by U. S

Washington, Feb. 19.—Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador, has dispatched by cable to Berlin advices containing the new demands of the United States, which call for assurance as to the future conduct of submarine warfare as an inseparable part of the settlement of the Lusitania controversy.

Germany's response to the latest request of the United States for assurances that submarine warfare will be conducted in accordance with the established principles of interna- onal law is expected here to be a flat statement that assurances previously given in the Lusitania and Arabic cases had to do only with unarmed vessels, and that the German government must feel certain that its submarines which warn a merchant ship will not be attacked.

Further, the Washington Foreign Office probably will ask the United States for its definition of defensive armament. The German reply is expected early next week.

Following are the main moves developed in the past twenty-four hours in connection with the progress of submarine war:

WARNING BY SWEDEN.

1.—United States informs its diplomatic and consular agents abroad that merchant ships have a right to carry defensive armament. This is looked upon as an official announcement that the United States does not consider legal Germany's declared intention to sink armed merchantmen without warning after February 29.

2.—Sweden warns its subjects not to travel on armed enemy merchant ships after February 29.

3.—Berlin intimates indirectly to Germany that the date for beginning the new submarine war be postponed to April 1.

The submarine situation in all phases was discussed at a Cabinet meeting. Before the Cabinet assembled Secretary Lansing spent fifteen minutes in discussing the newest developments with the President.

From an authoritative source it was learned that the President and Mr. Lansing discussed reports that Germany has no intention now of expediting a settlement of the Lusitania case.

The State Department, it was declared, not only knows the attitude of Great Britain, but also that of all the entente allies on the subject of armed merchantmen.

BRITAIN'S POSITION.

Great Britain's position, it was pointed out, was laid before the department on December 4, 1915, by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador. In that communication the British declared:

"I have now received a reply from Sir Edward Grey, in which he informs me that His Majesty's government holds the view that it is not in accordance with neutrality and international law to declare on neutral ports merchant vessels armed with purely defensive armament."

REDMOND WANTS ERIN REGIMENTS

London, Feb. 19.—John Redmond in the Irish lower house appeals to the people of Ireland, appeals to the young men still available to join reserve battalions and undergo training that they may be ready, if necessary, to serve side by side with their kin in the field. He says:

"We must not and will not tolerate the idea that Ireland shall not be represented in the army by her Irish soldiers."

New Decalogue Has Approval of Kaiser, Is Report

By International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 19.—Ten commandments regulating the life and conduct of all good Germans, which, it is said, have had the approval of the Kaiser, are being published broadcast in Germany. They are:

1—Germany, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria must construct a pact of fidelity before conclusion of peace.

2—With reference to foreign policy, the object of the fidelity pact would be to build up an enclosed and isolated portion of Europe and Asia Minor in the economical and political sense. With regard to internal policy, the autonomy of each State to be maintained.

3—No German has the right to purchase abroad what he can buy within the borders of the alliance. To make this possible a community of customs duties and commercial agreements must be concluded.

4—Shake off all foreign influence; to this end raise your own sheep, refine your own petrol and plant your own cotton.

5—Travel, make health or pleasure trips outside the borders of the alliance; thus will you contribute greatly to the prosperity of all the countries of the alliance.

6—Learn German; it is about the countries of the alliance. You will be astonished at the resources they offer.

7—Don't cast pearls before swine; keep your valuta within centres pure. In other words, exclude foreigners from your universities and academies.

8—Destroy European Russia so that Europe may enjoy a durable peace.

9—Destroy the power of England; only at its destruction can an honorable peace be obtained.

10—Be hard and pitiless when the terms of peace come to be discussed. You will be able to place upon your enemies the burden of the world war.

Pope Protests Air Bombing of Italian Towns

By ANDRE BEAUMONT.

Special to the International News Service and London Daily Telegraph.

Milan, Feb. 19.—It is reported that the Pope is making a vigorous protest to Austria against aeroplanes dropping bombs on Italian towns.

After the destruction of the famous ceiling painted by Giovanni Battista Tiepolo in the early part of the eighteenth century in the Church of Venice, the Pope sent an urgent request to Emperor Francis Joseph to spare the Italian churches.

His Holiness thereupon received assurances that the Austrian aeroplane pilots were to respect the sacred edifices. These assurances were idle, as bombs from aeroplanes, which fly at a height of 9,000 feet, cannot distinguish a church from barracks.

When the news of the incursions at Ancona and Milan were received the Pope expressed surprise at this new affliction, and immediately asked for full reports. Cardinal Ferrari at Milan sent a description of the raid on this city, and expressed in scathing terms the indignation against the Austrian methods of warfare. He also asked the Pope to stigmatize as they deserved these attacks on unarmed populations.

Cardinal Ferrari declared that, far from terrifying the people, the incursions only strengthened their hatred of the Austrians, and as a result in Milan there was greater ardor than ever for war.

Similar indignant reports have been received from the Pope from several other prelates.

After the Pope read the letters he shut himself up for two days. It is believed that he was busy drawing up a very strong protest to be sent to the imperial government at Vienna.

REORGANIZE SERBS FOR NEW ATTACK

By International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 19.—As soon as the scattered Serb forces are collected and rearmed an offensive campaign will be opened against the Germans and Bulgarians. It was announced today by Crown Prince Alexander of Serbia. The announcement was contained in the following interview given to the correspondent of the Petit Parisien at Corfu, by the heir apparent of the Serbian military authorities.

"All the world knows the story of the heroism of the Serbian soldiers. What he has already done in the best indication of what he will do in the future. Soon, with new arms and fresh strength, he will take his place side by side with the allied troops and the world may be sure that he will prove that he has share in making the end of this struggle a victory for the allies.

WILL TRAIN TECH MEN FOR DEFENCE

Army officers and Tech professors led a meeting of students in Walker Hall to enlist for the national defence. Major B. T. Cole, U. S. A., professor of military science at Tech, presided. The speakers were Colonel W. P. Craighill, U. S. A., engineer in charge of the Boston district; Major Cole and Professor Porter, chairman of the military committee of the Tech faculty. Major Cole outlined the two hours a week of instruction in military drill with lectures on aviation and the work of the engineering corps in the armies.

MARIAN LAMBERT POISON CA£ ALSO A WARNING TO FATHERS, SAYS DOROTHY DIX

A HUNDRED warnings have been drawn by moralists and preachers for girls and mothers from the Lake Forest tragedy. But the lesson of it is no less for fathers and sons than it is for mothers and daughters. Marian Lambert is no more a warning to every girl to avoid the primrose path than William Orpet is a warning to every boy to go straight. What father is chum enough in his sons to advise and guide them? So sadly few. And that is why so many boys wreck their lives before they are grown. We hear about the failures of mothers, but where one mother fails in her duty to her daughters, a thousand fathers fail in their duties to their sons. What the world needs for its regeneration more than anything else is a new race of fathers with a proper realization of the duty and responsibility of fatherhood. Perhaps retribution does not come so swiftly to the boy as it does to the girl, but it comes none the less surely.—Dorothy Dix.

'BOYS REAP AS THEY SOW'

By DOROTHY DIX.

From his cell in jail William Orpet, the young college student who is accused of having murdered eighteen-year-old Marian Lambert, sends forth these words of profound despair:

"I did not kill Marian Lambert. I will be acquitted. There is no doubt of that. But, after all of this scandal, what can I do with my liberty? My college career is ruined, and I wonder if I can ever get a good job again?"

What young Orpet says of his fate is only too sadly true. There is every chance that he will be acquitted of the charge against him, that of slaying Marian Lambert, for the evidence against him is so inconclusive that even the girl's parents hesitate to accept it, and say in their bewildered grief that they can neither believe that Marian committed suicide nor that Will killed her.

Unless some much stronger proof of the boy's guilt shall be brought forth than has yet been made public, he will undoubtedly soon be set free. He will be legally acquitted. But he has been judged at the great bar of public opinion, and that has pronounced sentence against him, and it is a sentence that he will be serving out to the day of his death. Go where he will, do what he may, the fact that he has been accused of murder, and that directly or indirectly he was the cause of the death of a little girl who had loved and trusted him, will follow him.

If he should live a thousand years he cannot live it down. If he should go to the ends of the earth, he cannot get away from it. Always it will be the skeleton at the feast. Always it will be the shadow across his sunshine, the haunting ghost dogging his footsteps. Whether he be innocent or guilty, there will always be in the minds of his fellow creatures the blasting Scotch verdict: "Not proven."

BOY'S SLATE NOT CLEAN.

William Orpet may not have killed Marian Lambert. It seems most likely that he did not kill her, since no reasonable motive can be conjectured for his having committed so foul a crime, but it is not denied that he and the girl had been wandering in forbidden paths together.

And that is the sin that has found him out now, and for which he is paying the penalty. If there had been no guilty relationship between him and little Marian Lambert, it his slate had been clean, not only as regards her, but as regarded other girls, he would not today be in a cell, charged with possible murder. He would not even have been suspected of the crime.

But young Orpet's slate isn't clean. There are on it many damning entries, such as should be charged against no boy of his age, that show him to have been a little boy libertine with the unsavory wisdom of an old roue. Other girls than Marian Lambert were his victims, and it is his reputation as a Don Juan that rises up to condemn him in his hour of need, when he is charged with a crime of which he is probably not guilty.

Undoubtedly in all illicit relationships between the sexes, the heaviest burden falls upon the woman. She has to pay the highest price. Nature proclaims a woman's secret sins to the world, while the man's are hidden. Society shuts its door in the face of the woman who stumbles off the straight and narrow way, and invites the man who wallows in the mire to dinner.

All of this has made us believe that the woman who sins pays the piper, and the man who sins goes scot free. That is why we spend our time preaching homilies on virtue to our daughters, while we waste no time or breath in warning our sons against the dangers that beset a boy just as much as they do a girl.

We even smile indulgently when we speak of a boy sowing his wild oats crop as if it were a pleasant diversion that bore no aftermath, and—God forgive us—we do not even tell the poor, ignorant lad that as he sows so shall he reap, and that there is no other harvesting on earth so bitter as that of the sins of a man's youth.

THE MAN ALSO PAYS.

The woman pays most. True. But if you think that the man escapes without paying his score, too, ask William Orpet, shuddering for his life and with his whole career blasted before he ever arrives at man's estate. Ask the question at the lonely grave of Dr. Mohr, who paid for his immoralities with his life. Ask Harry Thaw, who spent seven years in madhouses and a million dollars before he settled his account. Question the ghost of Stanford White, who is remembered as a satyr and not as one of the great geniuses of our day. Ask tens of thousands of men shut up in insane asylums, or walking the streets, knowing that the hand of death is upon them as the price they are paying to outraged nature and morality.

Oh, men reap their wild oat crops in agony of body and mind, just as women do, and the cruelest lie on earth is that we let boys grow up believing that just because a man is a man he can sin with impunity, without ever having to pay the price of his wrongdoing. Perhaps retribution does not come as swiftly to the boy as it does to the girl, but it comes none the less surely.

The man pays for his excesses in broken body and weakened mind and failure. He pays in a childless home and a lonely old age. He pays with remorse and repentance. He pays sometimes the supreme price in knowing in his soul that he has murdered the wife he loves well enough to die for.

A hundred warnings have been drawn by moralists and preachers for girls and mothers from the Lake Forest tragedy. But the lesson of it is no less for fathers and sons than it is for mothers and daughters. Marian Lambert is no more a warning to every girl to avoid the primrose path than William Orpet is a warning to every boy to go straight.

We think a mother is criminally remiss who does not continually talk to her daughters about the dangers and temptations of life, and teach them that the greatest danger of all comes from the impulses of their own natures.

FEW FATHERS DO DUTY.

But what father ever sits down and has long and intimate talks with his boys, in which he tells them of the temptations that lie in wait for them, or who tries to teach them how to control the temptations that come to them from within?

What father takes the trouble to watch over his son in the critical years when the boy has the strong impulses of a man with the weak will of a child to control him?

My belief is that this young girl's tragic death should sound the call to revolution—a revolution on the part of women that she cease to be the sacrifice that man lays on the altar of love while he goes scot free.

True love cannot wait upon "modesty." True love, such as this poor girl knew, forgets all things except itself and the demands made upon it. A girl bearing a child is in the service of God, and woe unto the father, mother, friend, or lover, who casteth the stone.

The hour may come—may already have come—when Prince Babies as well as War Babies are to be held sacred and the mothers who bear them.

'SOCIETY SILENCE OF PARENTS IS GIRLS' ENEMY'

By MRS. G. VERE TYLER.

The tragic death of Marian Lambert is only another instance of the injustice of man-made laws.

Every time a normal girl has won out in her battle of love she has won a battle against nature. Just whether or not this battle has been an uplift to the world can never be determined. Privileged beings, women of genius, have borne their illegitimate babies, "made no bones of it," and society has bowed all the lower to them. These women took the law in their own hands and made man respect it.

It may be imprudent for an unmarried girl to bring a child into the world, it may lessen her chances—for men are as particular about second-hand women as they are about second-hand clothing—for social advantages, but it has made of her neither a criminal nor a sinner.

Motherhood is the seal upon a woman at work in God's vineyard and whoever scorns a girl upon whom the seal is set scorns God.

GIRLS RIGHT TO BE FREE.

It has been claimed that the one thing responsible for the tragic death of Marian Lambert is freedom—freedom to walk abroad and take her own life in her own hands! Why shouldn't a girl have freedom? What is life to man, woman or beast without freedom? Girls should be free—free to walk, act and think for themselves.

For who and for what is the girl denied freedom? Why should she remain indoors, plaiting her hair into braids when the sunrise or the sunset call her? This freedom that the new girl has found is called "intoxicating." It is intoxication free of poison whose only after effects may be that a child is born into the world.

If women are to be preserved for child-bearing by law why are they not all imprisoned physically as well as mentally? A woman's virtue is and has always been guarded not because her abandonment of love has made her worse in her own eyes, but less fit to be laid on the altar of man's desires, less fit for the acknowledged support of man.

When one gets at the bottom of all laws controlling women, sex and otherwise, they can be answered by one word: Man. Man took the world in his own hands through brute strength and woman has received his consideration only until he tired of her.

SOCIETY IS GIRL'S ENEMY.

If this youth did give the poison pill he only put into action the majority of men's feelings at the expiration of a passion. The story is so old that the wonder is it should attract other than passing attention.

If to a girl in her teens love is the greatest thing in the world, why must she be denied the greatest thing in the world in the period of its height? For what? For whom? Society? Society is her bitterest enemy. For man? When has he ever been fair to her?

My belief is that this young girl's tragic death should sound the call to revolution—a revolution on the part of women that she cease to be the sacrifice that man lays on the altar of love while he goes scot free.

True love cannot wait upon "modesty." True love, such as this poor girl knew, forgets all things except itself and the demands made upon it. A girl bearing a child is in the service of God, and woe unto the father, mother, friend, or lover, who casteth the stone.

The hour may come—may already have come—when Prince Babies as well as War Babies are to be held sacred and the mothers who bear them.

SILENCE OF PARENTS A CRIME

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

There must have been a day and hour when the girl who was found dead in the snow last week knew that she was facing a wrong course of conduct. There must have been a consciousness in her heart that unless she turned back from the path whereon she stood she must hide a shameful secret from her parents and her friends.

Perhaps she was told in that hour of hesitation, by her boy lover, that the world was full of girls and women who were hiding secrets, and that she would have the company of the gay majority, if she allowed him to guide her conduct, while she would be with the dull, prudish minority if she refused him the privileges he asked.

That is the way many men talk to women; and all the time these men know they are talking viciously; they know there is no happiness for any woman who sacrifices the old-fashioned ideals of womanly virtue and prudence and self-respect at a man's bidding.

KNEW OF WRONGDOING.

This boy, who is accused of the girl's murder, young as he was, knew that he was doing wrong in leading this girl into paths of secrecy and shame; or in allowing her to lead him, if that frequent situation happened to be his.

There is a type of over-romantic, over-curious and over-sexed girl in America who does lead young boys into amorous adventure by planning situations where she can be alone with them and by tantalizing them with her youthful charms, freely displayed.

Such girls are found in remote country places quite as frequently as in the city—more frequently, in fact; for the city girl has greater distractions and more occupations to consume her oversupply of youthful vitality than her country cousions.

The novels of adventure are responsible for many unwise actions of the day. But it must generally be stated that in the life of every girl who goes wrong there is a moment when she knows her danger, and when her Good Angel would come to her aid if called and save her from her own folly.

It is not the work of angels, unless called; for we are sent to earth to learn our own lessons, and there is no education of the soul or the mind to be gained if others find all the answers to our problems. Angels, like teachers, are given us to help in our extremity.

Every girl who is permitting a lover any liberty she would not have her parents or the public know, however much she trusts this lover and believes in his fidelity, is facing the possible fate of the dead girl.

Every youth who is leading a girl into paths of folly is risking a situation similar to that of the young college lad who is waiting in prison for his trial on the charge of murder.

ALL SHOULD READ STORY.

It is well for every girl and every youth in the land to read the story of Marian Lambert and William Orpet—an unpleasant story, and one which will cast an ignorant innocence the lurid light of knowledge of evil.

But if we are to keep our girls and boys ignorant of evil, then we must shut them in a cage and feed them through the bars. Left to walk free, and to associate with one another, nature, human impulses and the surge of young blood in their veins will throw them into the paths of danger, unless they are told the facts of life as they exist, and unless they are warned of the consequences of wrongdoing.

Give your young daughter the story of Marian Lambert to read, madame! and you, sir, give your son the story of William Orpet, after you talk with him as every father of any sense should talk with his son. Do your part toward saving your children from the sex maelstrom which seems to be a vortex in our midst.

The college lad, doubtless prided himself upon his conquests of silly girls, and with masculine egotism he believed he was to pass unscathed through his amorous adventures. Fate has meted out to him a life-long punishment, and if he ever becomes a father of children they must suffer from the reproach which will rest upon his name, even though the law may clear it from the imputation of direct murder.

The greatest penalties in these tragedies of the passions always fall upon the woman. But men do pay high prices for their sins and follies, nevertheless.

It is the duty of every father to tell his young son just what dangers lie in the path of lawless sex relations. Disgrace, the reproach of wronged womanhood, the loss of high ideals and the blight of physical maladies, which shall go down to the third and fourth generation, are a few of those dangers.

No boy should be given a night key or sent to even a public school until he has been told these facts by his father or his family physician. And from his mother he should receive that intimate talk of the sacredness of love of man and woman and the beauty of high ideals of fatherhood which lift his thoughts from the gross and lascivious plane to loftier understanding of these subjects.

Had young Orpet been so taught by his parents he would not be where he is today.

It is the criminal silence of parents which causes the names of their children to be shouted by the loud voice of scandal.

WOMAN.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

WHEN Woman drifts from good to bad,
To make her final fall complete
She puts her soul beneath her feet.
Man's dual selves seem separate;
He leaves his soul outside sin's gate,
And finds it waiting when he tires
Of carnal pleasures and desires—
Depleted, sickened and depressed,
As souls must be with such a test,
Yet strong enough to help him grope
Back into happiness and hope.
But woman, far more complicate,
Can take no chances with her fate—
A subtle creature finely spun,
Her body and her soul are one.

ADA PATTERSON SEES WARNING FOR ALL GIRLS IN LAMBERT CASE

By ADA PATTERSON.

Girls!

Since Marian Lambert's tortured body was found beside the clump of oaks where she had been wont to meet in secret the youth she loved, a great deal has been spoken and written about the duty of mothers. All of it was true. But if your mother has neglected her duty to you—teaching you to safeguard yourselves from such a fate as the girl slain in the woods—that does not relieve you of the duty to yourselves.

What is your duty to yourself? To preserve your life and to make the most of it in the truest way.

Your mother knows this, and if she hasn't instructed you in it so much the worse for her. But it need not be so much the worse for you if you use the brain God has given you and read the newspapers.

When a man makes love to you and doesn't talk marriage as nearly immediate as he can make it, it is safe to write him down as a coward or a liar or both. Cowards and liars are of the same family. Faugh! Oh, yes, it is fair enough. The cap fits the culprit. Besides, we mustn't wander from the text. We were talking of your safety.

SHOW HIM THE DOOR.

If he tells you you are not "game"; that you are "afraid of life"; that you are "not a good sport"; that you are a "prude," show him the door, and when you have closed it firmly after him put down and face the truth. Review the procession of girls who have listened to those arguments that are as old as temptation, as old as the serpent in Eden, as old as Satan, who invented them.

When a strang, new sensation that you think is "falling in love" but isn't starts your heart throbbing and your blood bounding, remember Grace Brown. She, too, thought it was love, true love, she was learning.

Instead it was shame and agony and at last death in an up-State lake. Death was hastened, it was said at his trial, by a blow from an oar in the hands of Chester Gillette. The man with whom she had gone on an excursion into the land of forbidden romance. He paid the penalty of murder with his life. Her letters to him, imploring him to keep his promise to marry her, so to screen her disgrace from the world, were published. Remember Grace Brown.

PASTOR AS WELL AS SUITOR.

Avis Linnell, living at the Young Women's Christian Association in Boston, was fascinated by a man who should have protected her. He was her pastor as well as her friend and suitor. Yet ambition, one of the most masterful of the forces in a man's life, claimed. He became engaged to a girl of wealth, of position, of influence. None of these Avis Linnell had. Poison sent her under circumstances like those of the pitiable case of Marian Lambert ended her life.

To the girl friend who telephoned him "Avis is dead," the Rev. Clarence Richeson answered:

"But why do you tell this to me?"

He has expiated, if such crime can be expiated, his sin, with his own life. The law of Massachusetts did that. But Avis Linnell is dead. Remember Avis Linnell!

When you hear "All for love and the world well lost" remember Dimple Lawrence and let others make the more than dubious experiment. They called her "Dimple" because she was of quality so sweet, so babelike, so trustful. She went rowing with two boy friends. Death sailed with them in that boat. There was no proof of crime. But what mattered? Sunny-tempered, sweet-faced Dimple Lawrence was dead. Remember Dimple Lawrence.

TRUSTED HANS SCHMIDT.

When you are begged to prove your "trust" in someone, remember Anna Aumuller. She trusted Hans Schmidt and he died yesterday for her murder.

When dark hours and secret ways invite you, remember that they invited the young girl whose body was found floating near the Iron Pier at Atlantic City. Jane Adams was her name. Remember Jane Adams.

When life seems humdrum, and you long for new soul adventures in wider fields, remember Annie Bradley? She was the wife of a respectable railroad clerk. She had a small son and daughter. She was content until a brilliant comet crossed her sky. In the brief light she sinned and suffered past imagination to compass! For she killed the man who wrought her wretchedness. And when she had suffered much, a humane Southern jury acquitted her, and something that resembled peace came into her tormented life. One of her sons killed the other. If you think an act is forgotten, and leaves no bitter aftermath, remember the woman who killed United States Senator Arthur Brown. Remember Annie Bradley.

If your mother will not protect you by teaching you the art of protection, if the man who professes to love you doesn't protect you, safeguard yourselves. Read your own warning by the murky torch of Marian Lambert's life and death.

You can, oh clear-eyed daughters of today,

CYANIDE KILLED GIRL

On the other hand the State claims these points:

1—Orpet had access to cyanide, kept by his father for gardening purposes.

2—A hidden container of cyanide was discovered in an ashheap at the Orpet greenhouse.

3—Orpet bought, the day before the death-tryst, a two-ounce vial, suitable as a poison container.

4—The girl was killed by cyanide, completing the poison chain.

5—The crystals beneath the girl's finger nails in no way weaken the State case. They might have come there by the girl putting her fingers in her mouth in convulsive effort to get rid of the poison.

Dr. Webster was unable to determine the form of the poison when it entered the system. It was cyanide of potassium in unadulterated form, but it might have been in crystal or in a saturated solution with water. Its effect would have been the same.

Orpet in his statement to State's Attorney Duby said he had walked away from the girl and when she gave a cry he turned and saw her drinking poison from a bottle. If his statement is true, Miss Lambert took the poison as a saturated solution in water.

SETBACK FOR STATE.

Orpet at one time was a student of chemistry at the University of Wisconsin. He undoubtedly would have the knowledge of the strength of the poison, and how the crystals could be dissolved in the water to make it appear a harmless and almost colorless liquid.

Orpet will not testify at the coroner's inquest into the Deerfield High School girl's death Monday in Lake Forest, it was announced by the State. It is believed the jury's verdict will order the student held for the girl's murder. In his cell at Waukegan, Orpet was resigned to this expectation. He continued to answer all questions with only a wan smile.

Leslie P. Hanna, one of Orpet's counsel, denied the report that a Chicago chemist was making an analysis of the poison found in the garage. This analysis, it was claimed, was being made in an effort to show that it was so weakened for use as bug poison in garden work that it would not kill a human.

That the jury which will try Orpet in case of his indictment will be composed of unmarried men who have no daughters the age of Marian Lambert, is the aim of the defense, was intimated.

CUTS $15,000 AWARD TO MRS. WHEELER

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Claudia T. Wheeler must agree to accept $12,500, instead of $15,000, from Albert G. Wheeler, her husband, or the entire verdict will be set aside. The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court ordered the reduction.

Mrs. Wheeler, whose matrimonial troubles have received considerable publicity, sued her husband for the value of furniture which he took and she claimed belonged to herself. The jury which heard the testimony awarded her $12,500 for the value of the goods and $2,500 for damages. The higher court cut off the $2,500 under penalty of a new trial.

MRS. G. VERE TYLER, noted writer, who reviews th Marian Lambert tragedy. She says the girl's death is another instance of the "injustice of man-made laws."

SEES OMINOUS WORDS FOR ALL PARENTS IN ORPET BOY'S PLEA

New York, Feb. 19.—Dr. Elizabeth Hamilton Muncie made the following comment on the case of Marian Lambert:

"It was like other boys and girls." These were the words of William Orpet, a college boy from one of our best colleges, in his defence and explanation of his association with the high school girl.

Is it possible that William voices the sentiment of our college boys and our high school girls?

He further said: "The girl was to blame as much as I." These words are also ominous. They should be flung in letters of flaming fire before every parent, every education, every Sunday school teacher, superintendent and preacher in the land; flung as fiery darts until they stimulate the consciousness to see what means the handwriting on the wall.

This should sound a warning to the parents to gather about them their boys and girls, and with confessions of their own neglect in allowing them to come to this age without a right knowledge, give to them the facts of creation for all their beauty and thus instil in their minds and hearts the desire for the best things of life, a home, companion and children to be their's some day.

Show them that to every boy and girl Mother Nature has given a most sacred trust, their creative nature; that upon their care of it depends all their future happiness; that self-control becomes a habit as does its opposite; that self-control has its reward in efficiency, success and all that is worth while in life. Furthermore, that unrestrained liberty leads to all that is ruinous and destructive.

FARRAR SLAPS CARUSO ON THE STAGE

New York, Feb. 19.—The real story of the open hostilities between Geraldine Farrar and Enrico Caruso, which culminated in a slapping match during their presentation of Carmen, was told today for the first time.

Other members of the Metropolitan Opera Company swore that the prima donna even tried to use her teeth in the struggle.

Although the audience that had been thrilled by the moving picture energy with which Farrar had dragged a chorus girl about the stage until the terrified girl was on the verge of hysteria, it missed the real encounter between Farrar and Caruso.

SLAPPED HIS FACE.

The trouble started early in the first act. Farrar as Carmen, was to throw her rose to Caruso, Don Jose. She put all realism of the movies into that throw, following through with her hand, in a vigorous slap that made Caruso's ears ring.

The audience noticed Caruso rubbing his cheek, and probably wondered why he maintained so much distance between him and Carmen. He seemed intently watching Carmen, with a pointed look that mystified those who had seen him before as Don Jose.

It was in the third act, when Don Jose has a burst of emotional singing, while Carmen clings to him, that the catch-as-catch-can really developed. She clung so realistically that he forgot his singing. He became exasperated, struggling at first to loosen the grip that hampered him.

SAY SHE BIT HIM.

Finally he grasped her so tightly that she could no longer struggle and held her in a rigid grip until he had finished his song. From the wings their friends whispered taunting messages. Then they were startled to see Farrar, in her efforts to break away, tried to force Caruso to let go by using her teeth.

It was then that Caruso did let go, rather violently, so that Carmen hit the floor with a resounding bang. The audience thought it part of the regular business, but it wasn't, and after the final curtain they glared at one another.

"Madame!" sputtered Caruso, "Do you take this for an opera house or a cinema?"

Whereupon Farrar retorted:

"If you do not like the way I do the part, let Mr. Gatti look for another Carmen."

But Caruso, recovering some of his temper, became courtly again, bowed to Farrar, and answered:

"On the contrary, he can look for another Don Jose."

And then friends rushed in, alarmed at the possibility of even more realistic repetition of the scene that had been enacted before the footlights.

Leather Mill Burned.

Andover, Ct., Feb. 19.—Fire early today destroyed one of the two leather board mills of the Case Board Company, with a loss of between $15,000 and $20,000. The fire started in a drying room. Four men employed in the factory succeeded in saving the other mill nearby. A quantity of machinery and stock was destroyed.

Wrote 2⅓ Miles of 'Woodrow Wilsons'

Washington, Feb. 19.

WHITE HOUSE statisticians announced today that President Wilson has signed more than fifteen hundred letters and commissions this week—an unusually large number.

The President signs on an average 50,000 various kinds of documents a year. He is an exceptionally slow penman, and the scrawling of his signature consumes six seconds.

The statistical lugs have figured that he consumed eighty-three hours a year merely writing "Woodrow Wilson." The signature is three inches long when he puts the final flourish on it. After three years in the White House he has written two and one-third miles of "Woodrow Wilsons."

Plans Cabaret for Happy Twenty Ball on March 10

Hill Lang of the Feist Publishing Company, who has charge of the cabaret at the eighth annual ball of the Happy Twenty, has a fine list of talent for the occasion. "Bill" is working overtime securing the very best available. A few of those who will appear are Della Tuttle, Sophie Bennett and the "Big Four," known as the Peter Bernard Sisters, comprising Tom Quinn, Abel Baer, Charles Ray and Victor A. Viverros. Abel Baer the great piano player, who was formerly accompanist for Nora Bayes, will give piano selections during the evening.

While the cabaret is going on down stairs, dancing will be held in the main hall. The Wonderful Pages, Margaret Scollins and Harry Malloy are some of the stars who will give exhibitions of modern dancing. Frank Bushman, the handsomest man in the films, will be among those present, as well as a host of others well known in the motion picture world.

The affair is to be held at Convention Hall, March 10 and from present indications, one of the largest gatherings of the season will be on hand. Newsboys stationed at the following points have the guaranteeship: Corner Washington and Dover streets, Boylston and Washington streets, Park street subway entrance, Adams square, North and South Stations.

Tickets can be had also from "Humpy" at the office of the Boston AMERICAN on Summer street or their downtown office, No. 244 Washington street. The committee announces that tickets will not be distributed through the mails.

Arrange Court Action to Clear Up Mohr Estate

Providence, Feb. 19.—With the return of Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr, the acquitted widow in the celebrated Mohr murder case, arrangements were made today to take up the court proceedings leading to a liquidation of the $100,000 estate.

One of the first things necessary will be a motion to the Superior Court to dismiss the several injunctions brought by the late Dr. C. Franklin Mohr and by Mrs. Mohr in the complicated litigation prior to the assassination of the physician.

These injunctions tied up all the family properties here and in Newport, so they must be dissolved before the estate may be sold and the proceeds divided. No difficulty is anticipated in having the injunctions lifted.

Some of the property is held by the Mohr Realty Corporation. This was [illegible] by the physician to keep it out of his wife's hands. Some of the property was in Dr. Mohr's name direct.

There is prospect of a ready sale of the Montpelier villa because a New York man who was here early in the week said he represented a Manhattan buyer who wished to pay reasonable cash price for the villa, stables, horses and other equipment.

When all the property is sold Mrs. Mohr gets $5,000 cash and one-fifth of the remainder. The other four-fifths will be divided among the four children of Dr. Mohr's two marriages.

Employes are remibered in the will of Louis B. Carr, of Arlington, which has been filed in the East Cambridge Probate Court. The testator was head of the Martin W. Carr Company, jewelry manufacturers in Somerville. He bequeathed $50 to every employe who has been in the employ of the company for one year, $100 to every one who has been working to retire, and to Frank Rafelli, who has been with the firm forty years, he left $500.

Mr. Carr left $11,500 to charity as follows: First Parish Unitarian Church, Arlington, $1,000; Symons Memorial Hospital, Arlington, $5,000; American Unitarian Association as a special fund, $2,500 and to the same association $1,000 additional for the Unitarian Service Pension Society; Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $2,000.

Mr. Carr died February 11. He left a large fortune, the exact size of which is not disclosed in the will.

MISS SLATTERY TALKS TO 2,500 N. Y. GIRLS

Miss Margaret Slattery of Boston, writer, lecturer and better known as "The Preacher to Girls," spoke before 2,500 girls last night in New York at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. The girls in the audience represented all stations of life, from the shop girl to this season's debutantes.

It was strictly a "girls only" meeting, not even the sexton of the church being allowed to enter. The organist remained just long enough to play the opening hymn. The meeting was under the auspices of the New York Sunday School Association.

Miss Slattery said:

"Every girl should have an equal chance to be morally well. Some girls are uncomfortable to live with. Some of you will make a home a place to run away from.

"I am not sorry for you if you are a 'misunderstood' girl. If you are misunderstood it shows you are not natural. If you want to be understood, be perfectly sincere. You are wearing a cloak. Take it off. Be nice to your mother.

"Have you paid your laundry bill? You smile! I know a woman who gives largely to all good causes, but she keeps her poor laundress waiting six weeks for her money."

"The greatest word next to 'love' is the word 'prevent.' If I could rub out the words 'neglect,' 'if' and 'but' I could right many of the world's wrongs. The campaign of 'prevention' is the greatest campaign which should be waged by the Church of God. For a long time the Church has been only rescuing."

SHIPMENT OF ARMS FOR GUATEMALA

Washington, Feb. 19.—Information reached the State Department today that a large shipment of arms and ammunition had just cleared from New Orleans for Guatemala. The shipment was consigned to an official of the Guatemalan government, it was stated, which prevented the United States officials from holding it up. State Department officials are certain the shipment is intended for use in the new revolutionary movement against the Carranza government in Mexico. The Guatemalan government, it was stated, will be responsible for seeing that arms and ammunition are not used for revolutionary purposes.

J. J. MUNDO, CREDIT MANAGER, DEAD

John J. Mundo, credit manager of the Jordan Marsh Company, died of bronchial pneumonia and heart trouble early today at his home, No. 106 Magnolia street, Dorchester, aged seventy-four. He was the veteran employe of the company, having been with it fifty-eight years, starting as an errand boy. He was one of the best-known credit men in this side of New York, had been president and director of the Credit Reporting Company, trustee of the Union Institution for Savings and treasurer of St. Vincent's Catholic Asylum. He leaves a wife and eleven of the twelve children who were born to them.

BOY'S SAD STORY IS CALLED A LIE

The tale of stealing for starving parents told by sixteen-year-old John Koclousky of Cambridge, following his arrest on a charge of attempting to rob a Watertown fish market, was branded as fiction by Chief of Police Lyons of the Watertown Juvenile Court. "The Cambridge police tell me that the young man's father is worth about $30,000," Chief Lyons told the court. Young Koclousky was held in $100 for a hearing next Saturday.

GIRL OF 14 GETS LICENSE TO MARRY

The wedding of fourteen-year-old Marie Gimarillo of Waltham, who recently received a special permit to marry from the Probate Court, will take place tomorrow afternoon at the home of her parents, No. 24 Exchange street. The little girl today went to the Waltham City Hall and got her wedding license to marry Frank Guliano, twenty-one.

ASKS $10,000 FOR WEBSTER'S BOOK

Waterville, Me., Feb. 19.—Frederic F. Graves, curator of the Historical Society, owns a book for which he has been offered several thousand dollars by a member of the Harvard College Corporation. It cost him five cents at a rummage sale. His price is $10,000.

The book is a well preserved copy of Noah Webster's "Dictionary," written between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five years, a number of the essays being of great value, as they were written immediately after the Revolution.

TWO BOSTON WOMEN QUALIFY AS PORTIAS

Two young women, Bessie Kisloff, 21, of Charles street and Christine B. Hill of Quincy, are included in a list of 67 applicants announced as qualified for admission to the bar. John J. Murphy of the Mayor's office is one of the unsuccessful applicants. The list will be reported to the court by the bar examiners on March 21.

Miss Kisloff is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Kisloff and a graduate of the Girls' High School.

LETS PRISONER GO TO DYING MOTHER

On a plea that she wanted to hasten to the side of her dying mother, Mrs. Marion Merrion, who was arrested on the charge of smuggling drugs to her husband in the East Cambridge jail, had her case continued until February 29.

"Please put off my case, judge," said Mrs. Merrion, who is twenty-two. "Why are you so anxious for a continuance?" asked Judge Almy.

"Because my mother is dying and I want to see her."

"Can you get bail?"

"Yes. I couldn't last night and had to stay at the station, but I can today."

Mrs. Merrion lives at No. 15 Claremont park, Roxbury. Her husband, Louis Merrion, is awaiting extradition to Montreal, where he is alleged to have stolen a tray of diamonds from a jewelry store. A Montreal young woman identified him as the alleged thief.

He has been at the East Cambridge jail since February 2. His young wife has been a constant visitor. The jail officials say the smuggled drugs for him in food. They charge that she concealed heroin in jam and morphine dissolved in coffee. She pleaded not guilty.

U. S. WAR ORDER COMPANIES FAIL

Washington, Feb. 19.—Many American war order companies are collapsing under the burden of European contracts because of the increased price of raw material according to reports given the treasury department by New York business men. One bonding house reported that it has a list of four hundred companies operating in and around New York city which had war orders from Europe, and which have failed. Even the high bids made by these companies for the orders did not allow a sufficient margin for the tremendous increase in wholesale prices of raw materials, the reports say.

GRAND OPERA LOSS IN CHICAGO $98,000

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Grand opera in Chicago this season cost the guarantors of the Chicago Grand Opera Association $98,000, according to Charles G. Dawes, president of the Central Trust Company, and one of the directors of the association.

Mr. Dawes expressed satisfaction with the business management and financial returns of the season, on which comment had been made because of the resignation of Bernhard Ulrich, as business manager.

At the opening of the season the financial backers figured to lose $100,000.

MRS. SAUL ROBINSON DIES AT HOSPITAL

Mrs. Saul Robinson of No. 5 Babcock street, Jamaica Plain, who gave a "farewell party" at her home a short time ago before going to a hospital for an operation, is dead.

Mrs. Robinson before her marriage was Maude Morris, an actress, and had appeared in George M. Cohan's "The Man Who Owns Broadway."

Conservatory Girls in Ballet Present "Wooing of Bacchus"

Miss Luella Proctor, at left, and Miss Madeline Coy, prominent dancers at the Conservatory of Music ballet.

The "Ballet of Bacchus," a classical idyl, presented by the young women of the New England Conservatory of Music at Jordan Hall, last evening, was a social and financial success. Many prominent society women attended.

Marshall Hall is the author, and he was in charge of the production. The ballet interpreted by seven young women was only one of the features of the evening. The stage was set to represent the garden of a Grecian palace. The Misses Melba Proctor, Madeline Coy, Georgine Moses, Flora Yeo, Mildred Charles, Ruth Lipton and Ruth Lawlor impersonated nymphs.

The wooing of Bacchus, impersonated by Marshall Hall, turned them from supposed marble to life, and their graceful dancing blended effectively with the sylvan beauties of the scene enhanced by variegated lights.

MISS JORDAN IS BRIDE OF ROBINSON

Miss Dorothy May Jordan, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eben Dyer Jordan of Beacon street and Manchester, and Monroe Douglas Robinson of New York, Harvard '09, a nephew of former President Roosevelt, were married in Trinity Church at 12:30 today.

Back Bay and North Shore society came to the bridal and the reception following at the Jordan residence. A number of New York guests were present.

The bride was attended by Miss Edith Deacon and Miss Lilian Mitchell, her closest friends.

Mr. Robinson's brother, Theodore Robinson, Harvard, 1904, was best man. The ushers included Gerry Chadwick, Frank and Maurice Roche, Edwin B. D. Morgan, Jr., Sheffield Cowles and Arthur Mason Jones of New York, James G. Blaine, 3d, of Providence, N. S. Simpkins of Beverly Farms, Gaspar Bacon of Jamaica Plain and Robert Jordan, brother of the bride.

The bride is a member of the Vincent and Chilton clubs and has given a great deal of her time for other people. Her pet interest has been the North Bennet Street Industrial School. She has contributed largely to it and for personal service has taken classes, particularly in dancing.

The bride has been known in society circles as one of the best amateur solo dancers in the country. She studied under continental teachers and brought herself to a rare degree of grace and skill. At Vincent Club entertainments and at many a society charity her dances have been a leading feature.

The past season she danced twice for the Brookline Friendly Society at its weekly "movie" shows for Brookline children.

She has danced in New York and Philadelphia for smart charities. One of her most notable appearances was at the benefit for the New York Lying-In Hospital at Sherry's a few years ago, when Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson and Mrs. Robert Goelet sang, Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden played and other society leaders took part.

For occasional rest from the whirl of society demands the bride has retreated to her beloved farm, an estate of her own in Wenham given to her by her father eight years ago.

HELD ON CHARGE OF KILLING MOTHER

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 19.—Charged with the shooting of his mother in a shack, in what is known as the Westwoods of Hamden, two and a half miles from the main highway, John Overus, 24, is locked up to wait orders of Coroner Mix, who is investigating the case. The mother, Agnes Overus, 65, was found dead in the shack where she lived with her husband and son.

SOCIETY

The last assembly of the All Souls Land-a-Hand Club will be held at the Tuileries tonight. Mrs. Wesley Jones and Mrs. Thomas Appleton will receive the guests and Manning Morstill will be the head usher.

Those assisting Mr. Morrill are: George Robinson, Harry Grafton, George Parsons, John F. Davies, Everett Black and Dr. David H. Judd. The series of dances given by the club this Winter have been notable successes both socially and for the cause they have represented.

* * *

The wedding of Miss Harriet Winchester Pew and Nasen Garfield today in Salem was a fashionable social event.

The bride is the daughter of General and Mrs. William A. Pew and Mr. Garfield is the son of President H. G. Garfield of Williams College.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James D. Franks, assisted by Bishop Le de Wolf Perry of Rhode Island. Though a large and distinguished assemblage witnessed the marriage in Grace Church, simplicity was the keynote. The maid of honor was Miss Marguerite Little, daughter of former Mayor and Mrs. David W. Little of Salem, and the best man was Edward Lincoln of Springfield.

James and Stanton Garfield, brothers of the groom; E. I. Barnard, a brother-in-law of the bride, and Angus Den were the ushers. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, No. 17 Flint street, Salem.

* * *

Miss Rosamond Lancaster, one of the most attractive buds of Worcester society, and her mother, Mrs. John Lancaster, are at Palm Beach for a visit of several weeks. Miss Lancaster's presentation, in December, was one of the smartest of the Winter.

* * *

Mrs. John Phillips of No. 191 Commonwealth avenue was hostess today at a musicale.

* * *

Francis Brooks of Beacon street was the Boston usher at the wedding at St. Bartholomew's Church today of Miss Margery Rand and Charles Kenneth Clinton. Miss Rand is well known in Boston and Mr. Clinton is of the Harvard '12 class.

* * *

Mrs. Kemp Patterson of Brookline announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Cora Patterson, to James Richards Moore of Hartford, Ct., a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Moore and grandson of Sir William Richards, former Chief Justice of Canada. Mr. Moore was graduated from Yale with the 1913 class.

The wedding will take place soon after Easter at the Brookline home of Miss Patterson.

* * *

Among Bostonians in Atlantic City are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Arthur Shuman of Beacon street, who will probably remain until late next week.

BANKER'S HOME IS WRECKED BY BOMB

Chicago, Feb. 19.—With a roar that could be heard for miles and with a force that rocked houses on their foundations and shattered scores of windows, a bomb was exploded in the home of Modestino Mastrogiovanni, an Italian banker, in the heart of a fashionable section of Grand Boulevard at daylight today. The banker's home, a three-story structure with a stone front, was demolished. No one was injured. A Black Hand plot was believed by the police to have been responsible.

TENNEY IS NAMED PILOT

Old Boston Favorite to Manage Newark Club—Toronto Picks Birmingham as Skipper

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Manager Donovan will lead the advance squad of Yankees to the training camp at Macon, Ga., tomorrow afternoon. There will be twelve in the party leaving here, including Owner Huston. A number of players will be picked up en route, and Donovan will open practice next Tuesday with about twenty men.

The second detachment, including "Home Run" Baker, will report to Macon March 1, most of them going direct to the camp from their homes. Donovan will have forty-five players at practice.

Coach Charley (Duke) Farrell, who will handle the young pitchers will start with the first squad.

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Fred Tenney, former first baseman of the New York Giants and a Boston idol for many years, will be the manager of the reorganized Newark club of the International League.

James R. Price, former Boxing Commissioner in New York, is president of the club.

Price has long been identified with baseball as a writer and in recent years has been a sort of confidential agent for Ban Johnson, leader of the American League.

This was the most important announcement made at the close of the meeting of the International League at the Hotel McAlpin.

The real power behind the Newark club is H. Clay Smith of Chicago. Ban Johnson induced him to purchase the franchise for $25,000. The final disposition of the club was held up for nearly two weeks because President Barrow wanted to give the people of Newark a chance to organize a company to take over the property.

Joe Birmingham, former manager of the Cleveland club, has been signed to lead the Toronto team.

Ban Johnson, before he started for the West last night, said that the National commission will hold a meeting in New York February 25.

JUST FINE FOR WOUNDS

For wounds, cuts, sores or bruises apply at once a little Minard's liniment obtained at any drug store. It is absolutely pure, wonderfully antiseptic and works wonders in its healing influence. Its use promotes circulation and restores vitality to injured or wounded parts and causes rapid healing. It is entirely stainless, safe and clean to use and very economical.—Advertisement.

Waivers Asked on Smokey Joe Wood

Waivers have been asked on Joe Wood, "Smokey Joe."

This the baseball news that comes over from New York today.

At the Red Sox office Secretary Riley said he knew nothing about the matter. President Lannin is in New York and some statement is expected from him later.

The story is that Owner J. J. Lannin of the Red Sox has been unable to induce Wood, the club's noted right-hander, to listen "to reason" in the form of a $2,500 cut in his $7,000 stipend.

The hero of the 1912 World's Series has never been physically sound since he was operated on for appendicitis.

Wood won thirty-four of his thirty-nine championship starts in the 1915 season, and it was mainly due to his brilliant hurling the Boston club finished first in the American League race. He also starred in the blue ribbon series that Fall with the New York Giants.

"Smokie" was stricken in the Spring of 1915 and made but twenty-two trips to the firing line that year. His mighty right arm failed him the following season and, while he has captured a big percentage of his starts in the past three campaigns, it is thought but the truth he has not performed very often.

Wood was out for practically six weeks at one stretch last Summer, on top of that he was of little, if any, use to Manager Carrigan in the windup and so far "gone" when it came time to go to war with the Phillies in the World's Series he was not used at all.

GOTCH NOT READY FOR COME-BACK GO

San Francisco, Feb. 19.—Frank Gotch, the champion wrestler, today was granted a postponement of ten days for his match with Ad Santell. The bout was originally scheduled for February 22. Gotch, who is at San Bernardino, wired today:

"I would not attempt to throw Santell twice within an hour as required in order to win without being in perfect condition."

Santell's manager granted the postponement.

TOE-HOLD WANTED BY SIGNOR HUSSANE

Yousouf Hussane, the Bulgarian wrestler, is due to arrive in Boston today to finish training for his match with Waldek Zbyszko, in Mechanics Building next Wednesday night. The Pole is training in New York and is due here Monday.

Jack Curley, manager of Hussane, is willing to bet that if Ce "toe-hold" is allowed Hussane will win in straight falls.

CUP FOR DAUGHTER, AND ONE FOR MA, TOO

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 19.—Mother and daughter starred together on the golf links yesterday. Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Western champion, won the Florida State title by defeating Miss Louise Witherbee of Fort Henry, 4 and 3, while Mrs. Benjamin Rosenthal, her mother, took the cup in the second division by disposing of Mrs. C. J. Felber, La Crosse, Wis., 4 and 3.

WATERLOO CUP FOR HULTON'S ENTRANT

Liverpool, Feb. 19.—E. Hulton's Harmonicon won the Waterloo Cup, for greyhounds entered over the flats of the Altcar Club. H. Hardy's Hogback was second. The winning owner received, in addition to the famous cup, value of $1,500, a purse of $2,500 awarded by the Earl of Sefton.

WAY CANNOT PITCH FOR YALE THIS YEAR

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 19.—Nelson M. (Dee) Way, Yale's best pitcher, will be ineligible for this year's team, it was announced last night. He played a year at Norwich before entering Yale, so his time is up.

THE RABBITS' COLUMN

By Walter J. Mcgrannville
SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

There seems to be considerable favorable comment upon the choice of a name for the new league. Eastern League sounds good in Springfield and recalls fond memories. February 24 the new league will perfect its organization. It has every prospect of a life of prosperity.

* * *

Speed on the diamond has always been President B. B. Johnson's endeavor. The Spring meeting of his league had some speed also. No hanging around the corridors for the American League magnates. They got together, dispatched their business and left for home all in half a day.

* * *

Owner Phil Ball of St. Louis is some sportsman. He remarks he had a lot of fun dropping about $200,000 in baseball. It looks as if he would get much of that back in the American League.

* * *

Billy Hamilton, I hear, wanted to buy the Worcester club, but his offer was only large enough to cover the club's indebtedness. Now it is rumored he is looking to get a part of the club and become its manager. It looks very much to me as if John Ganzel will go on the job. He has some matters to settle with the Federal League, after which he will probably be in Worcester directing Hiram Brewer's boys.

* * *

Here's hoping that the month of May will be Spring-like in every particular. The Red Sox are at home and I know what cool weather means to the ballplayer as well as to the magnate.

* * *

Bill Sweeney made a decided impression upon the Boston College boys, who will work hard to merit his approval. Bill's friends are pulling for him to make a good showing and feel confident he will.

* * *

Harry Smith is among those who are to try for the come-back class. He goes to Macon with the Yankees to try to convince Manager Donovan. Here's the best of luck to you, Harry!

* * *

The Braves get the first start southward for Spring training. I mean for the Boston clubs. The Eastern contingent sets sail from New York March 2 for Jacksonville and thence to Macon, while the first squad of the World's Champions, under Manager Carrigan's direction, leaves a week later for Hot Springs.

* * *

Scout Joe Kelley and "Duke" Farrell will be welcome visitors at Macon. They are well known there and the early start of the Yankees' veteran coach should mean much to the youngsters in the battery department.

* * *

The New England Leaguers chose an appropriate hotel in which to close the history of that organization. In the good old days the Quincy House was the place where the visiting ball clubs stopped, dressing there, piling into an on-top of a big coach, which, drawn, for the ride to the Walpole street grounds. Today the fans find these relics of particular historic value, being held in the old setting.

* * *

Two weeks from today and I shall be on my way southward.

Sweeney Is Big Noise at Spicy B. C. Smoker

"Preparedness" was the keynote of the baseball smoker at which the Junior Class of Boston College entertained the rest of the undergraduates in the B. C. High gym last evening. The "preparedness," however, was entirely in relation to baseball, and the most deadly weapons consumed were stogies.

President Lannin of the Red Sox, Coach "Bill" Sweeney of the B. C. nine, Arthur Cooper, a baseball writer and scout for the Red Sox; Captain Joe Dee and Manager Jack Mitchell were the speakers, while President William Kerrigan of the Junior Class presided.

The Maroon and Gold is out for a championship team and the smoker marked the opening of the campaign to arouse interest among the students and alumni. A musical program, in which the Glee Club and the college orchestra were the chief contributors, brought the festivities to a close. This was Coach Sweeney's first appearance before the B. C. undergraduates and he received a flattering reception. He delivered an unusually witty and timely speech.

SPRINGFIELD TEAM WINS FENCING MEET

Springfield Y. M. C. A. College finished its fencing season in a blaze of glory last night, defeating Harvard, after a battle royal, five bouts to four. The meet was decided in the last bout when Captain Earl Zinn outclassed Eddie Hamilton of Harvard, 11-4, and dissolved the existing tie. Charley Bird surprised Captain Russell of Harvard, tieing him in their first round and defeating him, 5-3, in the extra session. The summary.

Bird (S) defeated Russell (H) 5-3, 5-2.
Hamilton (H) defeated Bowles (S) 5-4.
Zinn (S) defeated Cole (H) 5-3.
Hamilton (H) defeated Bird (S) 5-5.
Bowler (S) defeated Cole (H) 5-1.
Russell (H) defeated Zinn (S) 5-1.
Bird (S) defeated Cole (H) 5-2.
Russell (H) defeated Bowler (S) 5-0.
Zinn (S) defeated Hamilton (H) 11-5.

BOWLING FACTS AND COMMENT

HASKELL and Jours of the Royal Arcanum League are open to meet any fraternal tandem team in Greater Boston. The two are tied for top honors in their league, 101.

* * *

ROYAL sprung the real surprise of the Typewriter League season when it took two straight from the hitherto undefeated leader, Remington First.

* * *

BY this victory the Royal quintet secured a firmer grip on second place, while Underwood second, taking three points from Underwood First, has its rivals distanced for third place.

* * *

AS the sixth team in the race is only seven points behind Underwood Second, there is time for many changes before the curtain is rung down, April 4.

* * *

WHILE Osgood is again closing in on Ferdinand in the Furniture League race, the latter is managing to keep a comfortable distance away. Four points is now the margin of separation.

* * *

THE Furniture individual race is also furnishing as much interest as the team tussle. Stiles and Shaughnessy are having it out in hammer-and-tongs style for first place, with the latter having a shade ere better at 97. Riley is a close third.

* * *

STILL no change in the Odd Fellows' contest. Week after week goes by, with the same two points separating Everett and Neptune. Mt. Pleasant, at one time a real contender, has "cracked" completely, and is now having its bonds full staving off Putnam and Siloam.

* * *

THE team representing John C. Paige & Company has finally overhauled Gilmore, Rothery & Company in the Fire Insurance League race. The two firms are tied for first place.

LIVINGSTON NAMES DERBY NOMINEES

New Orleans, La., Feb. 19.—Jefferson Livingston of Cincinnati, a visitor at the track yesterday, said that his three-year olds, Polrona, Fluero and Colonel Venale, would be his nominations in the Kentucky Derby and that Royal II will carry his colors in the Louisville handicap.

E. B. S. C. SQUAD IS WINNER OVER L ST.

The East Boston Swimming Club squad landed the honors in its dual meet, handicap, with the L Street Swimmers' Club, 31-26. The medley relay, with each man swimming a different stroke, the feature event on the program, was won by the East Boston team.

NEWTON LUCKY TO WIN FROM MEDFORD

Newton High, though fairly outplayed most of the way, laid out Medford High, 2-1, in their Intercollegiate League clash. Laird and Prendergast starred for the losers, while Burkhardt and Hughes excelled for the winners. The victory enables Newton to remain tied at the top with Arlington.

GRANT AND SHAFER ARE UP AGAINST IT

New York, Feb. 19.—Dr. William Rosenbaum and Arthur M. Lovkland landed in the semi-finals in the national indoor tennis championship tournament by defeating Wylie C. Grant and C. Carlton Shafer, titleholders of the title, 6-4, 11-9. The semi-finals in both the singles and doubles will be played today.

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

HOBEY BAKER'S second appearance in Boston this season gives hockey followers the greatest treat any gathering of fans in the country could possibly look for.

Together with the other members of the St. Nicholas A. C. seven, Baker appears against the Harvard varsity seven in the second game of the big double offering tonight at the Arena.

The opening session has R. A. A. and Crescent A. A. of New York for an attraction and that game in itself is sufficiently good to attract a large gathering. However, with Baker present in the game against the best college seven in the country, nothing can overshadow the attraction which will be offered after the R. A. A.-Crescent A. A. clash.

Inasmuch as the St. Nicks are the team which will unquestionably win the championship of the Amateur Hockey League, and as Harvard seems sure also to win the intercollegiate title, Boston fans can see that the game is one on which the amateur championship of the country depends. Followers of the Crimson team consider they have plenty good enough to win from the New Yorkers.

HARVARD WON '15 GAME.

A year ago this month Harvard, with a team materially weakened through the illness of two of its members, won from the St. Nicks, 4 goals to 2. At that team Baker and Ray Ellis played, as well as some of the others who will appear in tonight's game.

Harvard is unquestionably stronger than the Crimson team which went over the New Yorkers a year ago. However, there is this to be said about the New York seven: Kuhn, formerly of Princeton, and Turrell, a New York boy, have been added to it and with them came increased strength.

Followers of intercollegiate hockey will remember that it was Turrell who helped net a little bit to gain for Baker the great name he had during his intercollegiate career. It was passes from Baker to Kuhn that scored Princeton goals and gave the Tiger team a championship title more than once.

Boston fans will recall the fine work by Cox and Fox on wings for St. Nicks on the occasion of their meeting with R. A. A. hardly a month ago. Both men have been supplanted, Fox by Kuhn and Cox by Turrell. Just how good Turrell is Bostonians will know after tonight. Reports from the big city, brought here by "Billy" Bunnell, the referee, state that Turrell is a fast skater and swell stickhandler.

Otherwise the St. Nicholas lineup will be the same as that which the fans saw in action against the Boston seven. Possibly Guy Carnochan will be in the net instead of Cole. The St. Nicks have been getting great guns since their season appearance and are primed to wipe out the Crimson victory of a year ago.

PERCY READY FOR BAKER.

The battle between Hobey Baker and George Percy should be one well worth watching. Percy is unquestionably the best college rover playing the game, and it is indeed doubtful if there are any players in league hockey who can excel him to any marked extent. Ned Baker is not quite so brilliant a centre as Captain Ray Ellis, but at that he is good enough to force any opponent to extend himself.

The Harvard wings, Thacher and Rice, are not quite up to the class of Ryan and Turrell, but at that they are fast enough to make the forward line of the New Yorkers go at full tilt for the win. In defence Harvard is equally as strong as St. Nicholas, and considering performance from all angles it would not be at all surprising if the Crimson were again victorious.

R. A. A. and Crescents should provide a fine game in the opening session. These teams have not before and the local number has credit for a win over the golfing boomers. However, that may be no means a certainty that they will repeat. McKenzie is playing a much improved game for the New York seven, and if R. A. A. does win it will only be after a hard fight.

TWO YALE HOCKEY STARS GET THE G. B.

By International News Service.

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 19.—Yale lost two more athletes through ineligibility because of scholastic complications. Jacobs and Buchanan, centre and cover point on the hockey team, were ruled to the side lines by the faculty. Their disqualification falls heavily upon the team because the annual game with Princeton here is scheduled for tonight.

By International News Service.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 19.—Selling platers had their inning at the Fair Grounds when the entire card was turned over to the cheaper grade of horses. As a result the sport was rather tame. A tremendous crowd was on hand. Two favorites won and Dr. Mak, winner of the second race, the "candy good thing" of the meeting, rewarded his followers. Dengro, in the fourth race, delayed the start for ten minutes because of his bad acting. He knocked down and slightly injured two assistant starters. The summary:

WHY FIGHT PUT OFF

Would Not Box on Ash Wednesday

JESS GIVES REASON

By JESS WILLARD,

Heavyweight Champion of the World.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Now that the date for my fight with Frank Moran has been shifted from March 8 to March 15 I will furnish a reason for my insistence upon the change.

It may strike many as being rather finicky, but it is correct. March 8 falls upon Ash Wednesday, a day that is held in great respect by the Christian world.

I have a number of friends who would not attend a fight under any consideration on that day. Rather than deprive them of the opportunity of seeing the fight I held out for a postponement. I believe that there are thousands who will applaud me for my making the change.

Of course, if Mr. Rickard and his partner, Mr. McCracken, had insisted upon me fighting Moran on the original date I would have done so. Though I had a rather severe cold, I am satisfied that if it were absolutely necessary I could have got into shape.

I believe that if a man does fight for a livelihood there is no reason why he should not respect the religious beliefs of his friends.

As many may now remember, my fight with Jack Johnson in Havana was to take place on Easter Sunday. I wanted to change the date, but at that time had no say in the arrangements.

The date was changed to the following Monday, thereby respecting the feelings of the folks in Cuba. And, believe me, I was just as delighted as they.

Eastern Racing Season Opens at Bowie on April 1

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The stewards of the Jockey Club have issued the 1916 Spring racing schedule. The dates follow:

Rosie—April 1-15. Havre de Grace—April 15-28. Pimlico—May 1-17. Jamaica—May 18-24. Belmont Park—May 25-June 14. Jamaica—June 15-23. Aqueducts—June 24-July 11. Empire City—July 12-July 29. Saratoga—July 31-August 28.

McInnes Slated to Run Ertle-Shubert Go

New Bedford, Feb. 19.—New England boxing followers predict a new lightweight champion after the battle between Jack Britton and Harry Ertle here next Tuesday afternoon.

They say that unless "Kewpie" Ertle, the St. Paul wonder, lives up to all the nice things said about him he will surely go down to defeat before the powerful rushes of New Bedford's "Bear Cat." Al Shubert, the New England champion at 116 pounds.

Shubert, who is just under twenty years old, has been boxing four years, he has lost but one decision, that to "Kid" Herman of Providence. He is a whirlwind in action; a tireless ring ter, seldom stops back, and cool head.

Hector McInnes of Boston will probably be the referee. Should he be objected to by Ertle, Joe Burke of New Bedford will be the third man in the ring.

RING RESULTS

New York, Feb. 19.—Charley Leonard, Benny Leonard's brother, stopped Ray Rivers in the eighth round in their bout at the Harlem Sporting Club. Allie Nack stopped Joe Phelan in ten rounds.

New York, Feb. 18.—Young Zulu Kid outgeneraled Walter Ketchell in a ten-round shade Joe Bradley at the Vanderbilt A. C. last night.

FORD DENIED A LICENSE.

New York, Feb. 19.—The Jockey Club stewards denied the application of Philip Ford for a jockey license. Ford rode under Walter Carter's application for reinstatement.

RING REMARKS

THE promoters of the B. M. A. A., after a week of turmoil, got a bad break last night when Tommy O'Keefe of Philadelphia, on with Frankie Mack in the main melee, broke his right hand in the first round and was forced to retire just as the fourth canto got underway.

It smacked of a fast, if not a rough, bout, and honors were practically even when a halt was called.

EDDIE MURPHY of South Boston, and Walter Mohr of Brooklyn are to have the second week's main number at the B. M. A. A.

MURPHY has been very quiet of late months, but claims he has been doing plenty of training and will be cherry ripe for Mohr.

THE Brooklyn boy registered a big hit when on with Terry Brooks, Byrne way, that was a match Eddie Mack never should have built for the Cambridge chap. Brooks must be in with a fighter to shine. Boys can't do it.

MURPHY claims he will knock Mohr off his winning streak. If Eddie gets back in his form of two Winters ago he can be relied upon to being bracketed. Likewise, getting a lot of bookings on pugdom's Big Time.

NEW BEDFORD expects a whale of a battle for the Johnny Ertle-Al Shubert title battle next Tuesday night. Its arena, your truly understands, can't care of some 5,000. We also hear Ertle is getting a guarantee of $1,500 and the chances are Hector McInnes will be the third man in the ring.

EACH side has posted $500, it is said, to make the real limit of the bantamweight class. Futhermore the bantamweight class. Futhermore the notch—116—is to be made at ringside. All of which means that the prelims will be according to Hoyle.

THE new date for the Walter Butler-Al Nelson bout at Manchester, N. H., is February 29.

GEORGE FREEMAN, "like clover's manager, says that the Sonny Boston boxer is rapidly getting in the pink of condition, and will be cherry ripe when it comes time to go on with Willie Ritchie in Milwaukee. The fans of the classic city which lionized Boston should have hopped after—is March 27.

CURTAINS ON BOUT EARLY

Tommy O'Keefe Breaks Hand and Forced to Retire in Fourth Round in Frankie Mack Bout.

WHAT gave every indication of proving a rattling good little bout, Frankie Mack of Beachmont vs. Tommy O'Keefe of Philadelphia, at the B. M. A. A. show, Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, last night, came to an abrupt ending just as the fourth stanza got underway.

That was because the latter battler had the misfortune to break his right hand in the first frame and was unable to keep at it.

As a most worthy Referee M. D. examined O'Keefe's damaged mit, after Tommy informed Referee Lawrence Conley he couldn't possibly keep going, and declared the break an honest one. Dr. J. F. Donahue was the gentleman making the examination. He certified that a small bone in Tommy's hand had been broken.

Though the betting prices at post-time was 2 to 1, with Mack some 4 to 1, obtainable, with Mack ruling the pudgy pick, the bout, as far as it went, didn't present any surprises enough gallop for Mack. O'Keefe was working just as diligently and intelligently as the Beachmont boy, but his punches scarcely had as much snap behind them as the blows delivered by Frankie.

STEPPING RIGHT TOGETHER.

Mack's loyal shouters claim Frankie was holding back a bit, and that their entrant would have landed a positive winner. Be that as it may, Frankie would have come on and won out, as that wee bit better brand of ring embraced his left hook to the jaw-less spelled more or less troubles for the tanguo, jabbing youth from the second round on, and by the time the twelfth round was over.

Just how serious the damage was done in the three rounds that were fought, sans the hunting of O'Keefe's right hand, Tommy O'Keefe was at back in good time. As for Mack he never looked more dangerous than he did. That's Mel Flynn had him at bay along at just the right clip to be able to keep to the darkest side of the mill.

Cyrus Goodwin, the sizzling slapper from the South End, was the real bit of the night. The roly-poly one went on with Eddy Gray, the lanky Peabody biffer, who has been punching a bit of class to him in the ring lately. Goodwin was expected to prove a set-up for Flynn. Instead he was the latter's match. He go from first to last. While Eddie floored Cyrus in the fourth round and rocked him several additional times, "Dumpling" absolutely refused to roll over and lie down.

GOODWIN FOOLS TALENT.

It was a hurrah bout in the extreme, jammed full of action; in fact, it was a bout that had its thrills and laughs. Maybe Flynn was a winner by bushes, but he received an extremely popular verdict when Joe labeled the number a good heat. Goodwin fooled the talent, and he's something coming for his aggressiveness and willingness.

Charley Shepard of New York and elsewhere, had a lapdown in Andy Morrissey of Salem. Andy did his best. If he had been over with Johnny Mello he would probably have gained a 50-50 call. Shepard was too tough and rough for him and "Sonny" Mello. His method did the right thing when he threw the sponge into the ring in the fifth round.

"Kid" Lee of Chelsea won from Young Zulu Kid in the semi-windup raiser. It was a fairly lively little skirmish.

Their Married Life

Helen Buys a New Pair of Shoes, and Warren Is Generous

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

"WARREN, if you haven't anything else to do, would you go down town with me to get some new shoes?" said Helen on Saturday afternoon.

"Thought you had just bought a pair."

"I had, dear, but I can't wear them."

"What's the matter with them?"

"I don't know. I thought they fitted me when I bought them, but they don't; they are too short and wide."

"Where did you buy them?"

"At that little place around the corner."

"Of course, I thought so," said Warren in his I-told-you-so manner. "You can't get fitted with feet like yours in a small place like that. I have told you often enough not to buy shoes in a hurry. If a woman's feet look well she looks well dressed all over."

"I know, dear, but you pay so much for your shoes."

"I know I do, but I don't buy a pair and then get them home and not wear them. Just think it over."

"Well, will you go down with me to get some?"

"Sure I will. Get your things on."

Helen got into her suit and put on the shoes that she had bought recently. They were good-looking shoes; in fact, Helen had paid a good price for them, but they did not fit, and Helen was very particular about her feet.

"I saw a good-looking pair at Blank's," she confided to Warren in the car.

"There you go again," snorted Warren. "Why don't you go to a regular place for shoes, a place where they do nothing else but make them?"

"Where for instance, dear?"

"At Mason's for instance."

"Aren't they expensive?"

WARREN IS PARTICULAR

"Well, you needn't worry about that as long as I am going with you. We'll see if you can't get fitted and look well and be satisfied for once."

Helen said nothing more. She knew that Warren would have his own way no matter what she said. She also was of the opinion that he knew no more about shoes than she did. But just because she had made an unfortunate purchase she had no statements to uphold her arguments. She knew that at Blank's she had always bought shoes that satisfied her, but of course if Warren wanted to try somewhere else she certainly might as well be agreeable about it.

The day was perfect, warm and springlike. Helen was looking well, and because she was conscious of this fact she quite naturally expected Warren to notice it. Several men glanced at her twice and although Warren said nothing she knew that he was not quite unconscious of it.

They went into Mason Brothers, a place Helen had always thought most exclusive, and Warren asked for shoes. An obsequious man came forward and led them to seats, and Helen said immediately:

"Something in high shoes."

"Wouldn't you rather get low shoes this time of the year?" said Warren.

"I would advise you to get high shoes. We are having reductions now, and you can get good bargains," suggested the salesman.

"All right," said Warren submissively, and then turned to Helen as the man went in search of shoes. "Didn't I tell you that this was some place?"

Helen could not help smiling. She hadn't noticed any difference from the way she was treated when she went anywhere else, but then Warren was sure that this place was the best in the city, and she was willing to be convinced.

"Here is something reduced to $5, one of our regular $11 models," said the man, coming back with a really good-looking pair of shoes, patent leather with gray suede tops.

"But I don't like button shoes," said Helen. "Have you the laced shoes in the same style?"

"I think we have. I'll get a pair," and again Warren and Helen were left alone.

"Don't you need slippers for evening? I thought I heard you say something about it a few days ago."

"I did, dear, but I can get them somewhere else, where things are not so expensive."

"There you are again. I tell you that is false economy. We'll get them right here today, and anything else you need. It will certainly give me plenty of satisfaction to see you well shod. I don't mind the money, so don't worry."

Helen liked the shoes the man brought and Warren asked for evening slippers. By the time they left Helen was the possessor of three pairs of shoes. The shoes that she had seen first, a pair of green evening slippers, and a pair of tan tramping shoes.

"How about stockings?" said the man following them to the door.

"Do you need stockings?" questioned Warren.

"No Warren, I really don't."

"Women always need stockings. How about a pair for each pair of shoes?"

"That's extravagant, dear, besides I never wear silk stockings for tramping."

"Might as well have a pair of tan stocking anyway."

"Yes, three pairs for three-fifty," said the salesman. "Otherwise one-twenty a pair."

"There's your bargain," announced Warren, and Helen said nothing more. Surely she was not the loser by this afternoon of unprecedented extravagance. But if she had ever taken it upon herself to buy three pairs of expensive shoes with stockings to match in one afternoon, Warren would have called her crazy. It made a difference who thought of it first; that was all.

(Another incident in this very human series will appear here soon).

"A Little Learning"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

"A Little Learning Is a Dangerous Thing," for With It We May Write a Message in Any Country

GIVEN a frosty pane and the white world outside for it to stand out against, the warm world, the scent of flowers and two who love within, three words are quite enough to know to get somebody into trouble. Oh—trouble of the heart and mind!—so that one's dreams are tangled and they can neither eat their porridge nor plow their field, nor walk to market without writing two hearts in the snow, nor remember what one came for after one gets there, nor hear when anyone calls, nor see what one is looking at. Given three words and there is a pretty pudding! After that one begins to know when the moon is full, and what time she goes home every evening, and when her birthday is, and what flowers she likes best, and whether she likes too big a house—ooh—or just a little one—ah-ah!—and just what a girl—her kind—likes best in a man—your kind!

A frosty pane—and a little knowledge! And the book of Love—a monstrous thick volume with mighty thin leaves and heaps of notes that you have to be looking up all the time—is open! You are a scholar for good and all. And the rules therein are hard and fast and they always say, "THIS given certain conditions, is ALWAYS true—UNLESS!" And then there's an exception to look up.

A little learning—and a dainty pink forefinger tracing what it knows on the glistening pane!—NELL BRINKLEY.

An Undersea Romance

Even the Sponge, in the Silent Life of the Depths, Seeks Its Mate and Battles for Existence

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A CORRESPONDENT asks if a sponge is animal life.

Sponges are among the most wonderful and puzzling of animals. The sponge of our bathrooms is the soft skeleton of one of the species of this remarkable creature, which represents one of the very oldest forms of life on our globe, having lasted through successive geologic periods for tens of millions of years, although it belongs to an offshoot which "has led to nothing else"—that is to say, which has produced by evolution no higher forms than itself.

A living sponge is a kind of cell city. If you can imagine thousands of siamese twins all joined into one composite body you will have a good idea of the kind of multiplex animal that a sponge is.

But, of course, you must not drive the comparison too far. A cell has life and activity, but it has no organs like a higher and more complex animal. "Sponges," says a zoologist (J. A. Thomson), "are living thickets in which many small animals play hide and seek."

Formerly many thought that sponges were a kind of seaweed. They grow attached to rocks, shells and other objects in the water, and nearly all live in the sea, although there is a fresh-water species called spongilla. The skeleton or framework of a sponge is formed, in some species of carbonate of lime (which constitutes the greater part of our own bones); in other species, of silica, a flinty substance; and in still others, of a horn-like material.

Sponges manage to draw their food within their reach by setting up currents in the water. If you and your family were microscopic organisms, dwelling in the neighborhood of a sponge, you might some time find that you were being swept along by a gentle current, as soothingly unsuggestive of its real import as the little shore eddies a mile above Niagara; and when, too late, you awoke to the situation, you would be rushing through a crooked tube, with hundreds of cells (living hairs) reaching for you from every side, and you and yours would quickly become the subjects of "intra-cellular digestion." Professor Thompson, whom I have already quoted, gives this very graphic description of the way in which a cup-shaped sponge lives:

"The particles are drawn in through minute pores all over the surface of the sponge; they pass into the cavity of the cup, and they are driven out again in a stream from the larger upper aperture. To what are the currents due? Obviously to the lashing activity of the ciliated cells.

"The community is Venice-like, penetrated by canals. By these, food and other necessaries are continually supplied to the houses, or cells, in the banks, and a constant current is sustained by the life of the city."

But many sponges are very much more complicated than the simple cup-shaped variety described by Professor Thomson. Their general scheme of living, however, is about the same.

Sponges spread like plants by budding. They also have sexes. In the calcareous sponges the ovum is fertilized by the germ-cell borne to it by water. From the ovum emerges a hollow sphere consisting of cells, and this sphere is for a time a free-swimming organism which finally fixes itself for life to a rock. Then the true sponge, in the forms which we know, begins to grow.

The fresh-water sponges die in the Autumn, except that certain groups of cells, forming "gemmules," survive during the Winter, and in the Spring float away to form new sponges. These consist of males, which are short-lived, and females, which live longer. From the latter is born another generation, which dies in the Autumn like the first.

Sponges have enemies, such as burrowing worms, and it has been thought that the sharp spicules, or flint knives, with many of them contain, and which cut like little razor-blades, form a part of their defensive armament.

Some of them, however, are themselves regarded as delicacies. There is a minute species which bores holes in oyster shells, and others fasten themselves to crabs and thus get carried about.

The most remarkable of these little travelling sponges is a small, orange-colored species which selects for its domicile a buckie shell that is inhabited by a hermit crab, as if it knew that in this way it would get a free ride for life. Sometimes, it is said, the sponge bores clear through the shell and thus spoils its auto, for then the crab gets out.

THE AVERAGE WOMAN—
Is as old as she looks the first thing in the morning and the last thing at night.

Feels absolute confidence in a man the minute he will admit that he has lied to her—an absolute distrust of him the minute she catches him doing it.

When in the throes of her first matrimonial quarrel, thinks longingly of the men she might have married — while her husband is thinking wonderingly that he need never have married at all.

Never rests until she has made the man she loves absolutely sure of her. And then she never rests because he is.

Begins to try to justify her love as soon as it becomes very unjust to her.

NO WOMAN—
Is clever if she lets you find her out.

Declares that "charity covers a multitude of sins" without hoping that she will never need to borrow a corner of the mantle.

Ever failed to find at least a little trouble when she went to look for a great romantic adventure.

Misses a man when he goes out of her life half as much as she misses him when she imagines "how she will miss him"—when he goes.

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS.

Whatever you do in this world, don't do—nothing!

"If I were king—ah, love, if I were king,
What tributary nations would I bring
To stoop before your sceptre and to swear
Allegiance to your lips and eyes and hair!
Beneath your feet what treasures would I fling—
The stars would be your pearls upon a string,
The world a ruby for your finger ring,
And you should have the sun and moon to wear
If I were king.
"Lest these wild dreams and wilder words take wing,
Deep in the woods I hear a shepherd sing
A simple ballad to a sylvan air,
Of love that ever finds your face more fair,
I could not give you any godlier thing
If I were king."
—Justin Huntley McCarthy.

In Our Wonderful World

NEW ZEALAND is rich in timber, possessing eighty-six different species of trees, most of which, however, have little commercial value. The favorite woods in use are wauri pine, totara, rimu or red pine, kahikatea or white pine, matai or black pine, puriri, rata and beeches. The girth of the marketable kauri trees ranges from four to thirty feet, the general average being twelve feet. It is estimated that kauri pine takes from 600 to 1,200 years to attain its full development.

Totara is a very durable wood, and of all the timbers of New Zealand it is the best for resisting the ravages of the teredo, so that it is largely used in the construction of wharves, bridges, etc. Puriri is a hard, tough wood, and very durable. It is largely used for railway works, bridge-stringers, etc.

In Tasmania there is a species of marsupial the females of which lay eggs, from which the young are hatched like the young of birds. This marsupial, the ornithorhynchus, is one of the lowest order of mammals, and is a kind of connecting link between mammals and reptiles. They are about the size of a baby porcupine, are covered with strong spines set thickly all over their skins, and by way of a nose they have a slender and narrow beak of white horn.

The echidna has very long, sharp claws with which it digs a deep burrow. In this burrow it builds a nest for its young and deposits one or two eggs, which are enclosed in a strong, flexible shell three-fourths of an inch in length by two-thirds of an inch in diameter.

Many people are under the impression that the leaves of trees and creepers turn red, or yellow, or purple, or brown under the action of frost, but the truth is that frost has nothing to do with the change. Leaves are green in Spring and Summer because they have in their cells a substance called chlorophyll, which is made green by the action of the sunlight. The green is of a pale shade in early Spring because the chlorophyll is not fully formed. When the substance is fully formed the green turns darker.

The women of Samoa often fish in the sea, without nets, boats or hooks. They simply wade into the water and form themselves into a ring. The fish being so plentiful, they are almost sure to have imprisoned some in the ring. These women are very quick and active, and every time they catch a fish with their hands they simply throw it alive into the basket on their back.

By the aid of a machine invented in Switzerland nails are placed parallel and packed compactly by magnetic action. From the feed-trough the nails pass through a shaking device, and then drop into a tray which has the two poles of an electro-magnet for its opposite sides. They are instantly turned into the direction of the magnetic lines of force. The close packing reduces bulk and saves weight in containers.

Daily Cooking Suggestion

MOLASSES CAKE

One-half cup of sugar, ½ cup of molasses, ½ cup of green or dripping, ½ cup of strong tea, ½ cup of cold water, 2½ cups of flour, 1 teaspoonful of each spice, salt and 1 teaspoon of soda, 1 pound raisins. Bake slowly one hour.

How the Weakling Gossip Becomes the Giant Scandal

Beatrice Fairfax Employs an Ancient Epigram to Point a Modern Moral

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE critical faculty in one in which no human being is lacking. No matter how lowly the station of an individual or how under-developed his mentality, he finds someone to look down upon and criticise. It seems a foregone conclusion that everyone in the world of today is going to "knock" just about everyone else.

"How could she do this?" "How dare he do that?" "How under the sun could they be guilty of such conduct?"—such comments fairly fly whenever two are gathered together. Human beings confess readily enough that they like a harmless bit of gossip, and fall utterly to realize that that "harmless bit of gossip" grows in the telling and assumes the proportions of a harmful bit of scandal.

"With every breath a reputation dies." Hideously true! We have often discussed in this little circle of ours the evils of gossip—the unfairness to others, its cruelty to its objects. But now it is worth while to consider its greater harmfulness—which is subjective.

THE OLD STORY

None of us can be sure what we would do were we in the position in which some one else is placed. The old story of John Bunyan and the criminal who was going to be hanged applies all through life. Said he: "There, but for the grace of God, goes John Bunyan." And there, but for the grace of God, goes any one of us in any set of circumstances, however unimaginable, or contemptible, or painful.

How is any one of us to know what we would have done in circumstances which tempted some one else to wrong-doing or even to his undoing?

Any one who has a poor heredity, who is brought up in a bad environment, who has the handicap of physical ill-health to bring his mentality from the healthful, and who starts the particular set of temptations best calculated to break down his small set of defenses, is pathetically likely to yield to temptation.

To one of us money is the temptation that is practically irresistible. Haven't each of us heard some carefully honest individual say to a bank cashier or to the handler of money in any large concern, "I wouldn't want to be in your place. Doesn't handling all that money every day drive you almost mad with the longing to have it for your own?"

Now, probably, the particular individual who was advanced to that position is there pretty largely because he is an individual of commercial honesty. Most absconding treasurers and cashiers run away, not because they have yielded to the temptation directly due to their money responsibility, but because of some outside influence—the races, cards, drink or even an illicit love affair. And probably an individual who meant to be honest and who thought he was honest yielded to just the particular temptation an inherited and cultivated tendency toward a certain sort of weakness made too big for his power of resistance.

FIRST AID

Cultivating strong inhibition and strong power over ourselves is likely to help any one of us to resist temptation. But not all of us know this. Not all of us train ourselves early in life to resist our own weaknesses. The self-indulgent boy whose parents let him have his own way and who makes everybody else let him have his own way is training himself for a manhood in which he will want something to which he has no right, but which his own desperate desires to have what he wants when he wants it will make him the victim.

How can any or us know what set of circumstances makes one man a thief and another an honored citizen? The thing for us to do is to get at the foundations, help raise standards of honesty and virtue, help make other rewards possible for virtue than merely virtue itself. What we need is to get at causes of crime. So at once we eliminate to an even greater extent our own cruel tendency to Judge It.

And that swings us back full circle to the magnificent summing up of itself which each of us may find in the Book of Books:

"Judge not, that ye be not Judged."

Do You Know That—

Beethoven composed some of his greatest works when he was deaf.

CHURCH NEWS of GREATER BOSTON

The Boston Unitarian revival will be held in the eighty-five Unitarian churches of Greater Boston March 5-12. These meetings are preliminary to the revival services to be held every evening in King's Chapel, March 12-19. Some of the most noted ministers in the Unitarian denomination will preach. Rev. U. G. B. Pierce of Washington will preach Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of that week. On Wednesday Rev. Dr. Paul Revere Frothingham of the Arlington Street Church will officiate; on Thursday and Friday the Rev. Julian C. Jaynes of West Newton; on Saturday and Sunday the Rev. Dr. Francis G. Peabody of Cambridge.

Rev. Henry H. Saunderson, secretary of the department of education of that denomination, says of these revivals:

"Unitarians for the first time in Boston will hold revival services in their churches. These meetings will be held at 8 p. m. and will be an appeal to the emotions as well as to the intellects of the indifferent. It is expected that they will show the willingness of the Unitarian denomination to do its share in making men and women of Boston better citizens."

• • •

A union ten-day mission, beginning tomorrow, will be held in the Dudley Street Baptist Church, joining with the Advent Christian and St. James' Street Christian Churches. The Rev. Lewis M. Hoper of Petersburg, Va., will preach.

• • •

There will be rousing services in Union Congregational Church, Columbus avenue, under the auspices of the Suffolk County Christian Endeavorers, on Washington's Birthday. Mrs. J. A. Blue, musical director of the Boston Christian Endeavor Union, will have charge of the singing. Among the speakers are the Rev. R. F. Anderson of Boston, Miss Helen M. Richardson and Leland W. Pollock. The Rev. Benjamin A. Wilmot, pastor of the Immanuel-Walnut Avenue Congregational Church, will make the address in the evening.

• • •

The ministers meetings for the coming week are as follows:

Baptist—In Chipman Hall, with an address by Samuel J. Elder on "The League of Peace."

Unitarian—Channing Hall, at 10:45 a. m., with special reports from the members.

Congregational ministers will join in the union meeting of the Morgan Memorial, No. 39 Shawmut avenue, at 10:30 a. m.

Methodist ministers will also attend the Morgan Memorial meeting.

• • •

"Nothing will be done about choosing the site for the Billy Sunday tabernacle until Ole' Sun' has seen it," according to the Rev. J. W. Walsh, advance agent of the famous evangelist.

• • •

The opening week of the Fred H. Seavey Seminary Settlement, connected with the Morgan Memorial, will be marked with many events. The Woman's Auxiliary will manage the cafeteria February 21-26. Monday will be Interdenominational Day; Tuesday, Patriots' Day; Wednesday, Social Service Day, with the assistance of the King's Daughters and Lend-a-Hand; Thursday, Temperance Day; Friday, Settlement House and Neighborhood Day; Saturday, Young People's Day.

• • •

Four hundred young women will take part in the Y. W. C. A. pageant to be held in Jordan Hall at 8 p. m. on February 23. The birthday service of this organization will take place in St. Paul's Cathedral, March 3, at 7:30 p. m. This service will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the association, when a jubilee offering will be taken.

• • •

The Lasell Epworth League Institute reunion will be held Monday in Greenwood Memorial M. E. Church, Dorchester, at 7:00 p. m.

• • •

Rabbi Samuel Schulman of New York will speak on "The Future of the Jew in America" at the Sunday afternoon Forum in the Old South Meeting House.

• • •

The choir of Grace Episcopal Church, Everett, will render a special musical service Sunday evening.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in the early trading in Boston and New York after opening firm and being fairly active for a week-end session. Up to the latter part of the session most issues showed little change, with a few exceptions. Profit taking and advanced quotations caused a number of issues to show fractional declines at the close.

COPPER RANGE ACTIVE.

In Boston, where trading was of a strong character, the Coppers were in demand and closed at $2 to $3 higher. American Zinc was also in demand and closed at $2¼. At their lowest American Zinc touched 19⅝ and Butte & Superior 27¾. Copper Range was strong because of its annual report showing a large profit for the year. Arizona Commercial and Arizona & Copper Range were also in demand. Lake, Old Dominion, Shannon, Utah Apex and Utah Copper were also in demand. Atlantic Gulf common declined 2 and American Woolen 1½.

Declines included Boston & Maine, Mohawk, New Haven, Butte & Superior, Calumet & Hecla and New Idria.

GAINS AND LOSSES.

Closing sales in New York included Amazonia ¼, Chino ½, Inspiration ⅝, Cast and Foundry ⅝, American Locomotive ¼, American Woolen 1½, Baldwin Locomotive ¼, Bethlehem Steel ¼, California Petroleum ¼, Mexican Petroleum ¼, Texas Company ¼, Marine ¼, General Electric ½, Lackawanna Steel ½, N. Y. Air Brake 1, Republic Iron & Steel ½, Studebaker ¼, Union Pacific ⅛ and Southern Pacific ⅛.

Railroads were weak and quiet. Among declines were Atchison ¼, Canadian Pacific ½, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, New York Central ½, New Haven ½, Northern Pacific ½, Reading ⅝, Union Pacific ⅜, Southern Pacific ⅛, Tennessee Coal ⅜, Maxwell ⅝, Studebaker ½, Crucible ¼ and American Can ¼.

An Argument Against Federal Film Censorship

PENNSYLVANIA has a State Board of Censors for moving picture films.

Last week these sapient guardians of the public ordered the Chestnut Street Opera House in Philadelphia to cut out seventy-five feet of film because they contained pictures of Kaiser Wilhelm and Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

The Board of Censors says that it acted under authority of the statute prohibiting scenes that are "sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral, or that tend to debase or corrupt public morals."

The first impulse is to laugh at the ridiculous officials who are able to discover something sacrilegious or obscene or injurious to public morals in photographs of the German emperor and his celebrated field marshal.

By the same ridiculous mental processes another equally absurd Board of Censors would forbid showing photographic likenesses of King George or King Albert or President Poincare.

In fact, there would be no limit to the asinine decrees a sufficiently asinine Board of Censors might promulgate.

It is for this very reason that the AMERICAN earnestly protests against the bill in Congress to establish a National Board of Censors of moving pictures.

We maintain that the constitutionally guaranteed freedom of the press would be violated by such a censorship, and we cite this very Pennsylvania incident as ample proof that such violations of fundamental constitutional rights do actually occur when a small number of citizens are given arbitrary power to control the amusement and the instruction of their fellow-citizens.

There is no reason to doubt that a Federal Board of Censors would be just as arbitrary as a State Board of Censors.

For it is the inevitable result of bureaucratic authority that the bureaucrats become species of petty tyrants—a sort of two-for-a-cent czars, who usually wind up by adding corruption and bribe-taking to their pompous and absurd exhibitions of irresponsible authority.

Now the moving picture is at once a school, a university and a public press, and by every dictate of common sense, as well as by the commands and guarantees of the Constitution itself, it should be left at perfect liberty to exercise its tripartite function of amusing, informing and instructing the people.

The laws which regulate other schools and other publications are in full force to regulate the moving pictures, to punish license and obscenity and viciousness—and those laws are ample and sufficient as they stand, without any censorship whatsoever.

We protest against this proposed censorship of the moving picture press on the identical grounds upon which we would protest against any proposed censorship of the printed press.

The constitutional arguments against one are on all-fours with the constitutional arguments against the other.

But the moving picture is not only an entertainment and an instruction. It is also a moral force. It makes people innocently happier. And innocent happiness is as important to the best development of fine character as any other influence or virtue.

More especially is the usefulness of the moving picture evident in the smaller communities, where, from the very force of the circumstance of minor population, the broadening influences of life have been somewhat lacking.

The residents of these smaller communities now have brought directly to them the liberalizing effects of travel, of foreign scenery, of the customs and habits of other peoples, of the social conditions of the wide world.

We can imagine nothing else so liberalizing, so instructive, so formative of character.

To be thus liberalizing, thus uplifting, thus popular, the moving picture must tell the truth and must be ALLOWED TO TELL THE TRUTH.

And it will NOT be allowed to tell the truth if it is ever subjected to the restrictions of narrow-minded and stupid and bigoted and arbitrary censors.

As Thomas Jefferson wisely and nobly said, the best governed people is the least governed people.

Our famous Declaration affirms the right of every human being to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." And every one of us has the making life right to choose the happiness that suits him best, subject only to the rule that he must not injure others.

So we have the guaranteed right to read and to talk as we please and to believe as we please and, as a natural corollary, to seek such entertainment of the eye as pleases us in the moving picture theatre.

This is not a privilege, conceded by any Congress or granted by any board of censors.

IT IS AN INHERENT, INALIENABLE, NATURAL RIGHT, a part of our existence, born with us into the world.

Just as each one of you has the absolute right to select and to read the newspapers and magazines which best please you, so each one of you has the absolute right to choose for yourself what moving pictures you will go to see.

The only rightful board of censors is the public itself. And it is a board of censors which can be thoroughly depended upon to make bad pictures unpopular and financial failures.

The whole theory of our national life is that the majority of the people know what is best for the people and are entitled, of right, to have their way.

The theory of a censorship is that the majority of the people do not know what is good for them and must not have their way, but the way prescribed for them by a handful of wiser overseers.

We shall resist that un-American theory of governmental and social life, in whatever form it shows its ugly features, as long as the AMERICAN is printed.

In the name of individual liberty, in the name of the Constitutional guarantees, in the interest of good citizenship and of public happiness and education and advancement, we protest to Congress against this undemocratic, un-American, reactionary, bureaucratic proposal to institute, in this free country, a Russian censorship over the amusements and instructions afforded to millions every day by the admirable device of moving pictures—the most effective entertainers and teachers the wit of man has ever conceived.

The Lost Lesson

HOW strange it is that men decline
To learn a lesson which is plain;
You can't expect the sun to shine
While you are being drenched with rain.

There's no man who expects to see
A river running up a hill,
And no man has the thought that he
May eat his cake and have it still.

But many men still think that they
Can go the pace and shun the debt
That in the end the fool must pay
With blighted chances and regret.

As He Figured It Out

"Now this car," said the energetic salesman, "is superior in many ways to any other you can buy for the price I'm giving you. You can see for yourself that——"

"There's no use talking to me about it. Go and see my wife and daughter. If you can get them to agree, all right."

"Have they any preferences?"

"I should say they had. One of them likes this car of yours, but the other has no use for it."

"But if you said the word, that would settle it."

"Not at all. I'm neutral."

"Neutral? What do you mean?"

"I'm letting them do the fighting. I'll have to pay the price when they declare peace."

Taking No More Chances

"Suppose you and I start a little flirtation, just to give the other people around here something to talk about," he suggested.

"No," she replied, "the last time I started a little flirtation for that purpose a wife I didn't know the man had appeared and tried to ruin my reputation."

Dipping Into the Future

In a hundred years from now
Who will know and who will care
What our troubles were or how
Pleasures found us here and there?
Even while we—you and I—
Still have hopes of climbing high
Woodrow's name may be forgotten,
And no paper, near or far,
May make mention of T. R.—
Ain't it rotten?

Fifty years from now, indeed,
Peace may reign in every zone;
All men may have what they need,
Each contented with his own.
Lobbyists and thieves may cease
To disturb the people's peace,
And be circumspect and lawful;
Pork may be abolished then
With all pork-fed Congressmen—
Ain't it awful?

The Reactionary

A reactionary is a man who takes pills after his meals instead of going in for the exercise that would keep him fit.

At Last

The cyclone had just finished its business with the Kansas town and passed on its way. A man crawled out of a cellar, released a dog that had been caught under a beam and looked around. Presently one of his neighbors succeeded in extricating himself from a mass of shingles and plaster and, having made sure that none of his injuries were fatal, called:

"Hello, Hank. Is that you?"

"Yep. You all right?"

"I guess so, 'ceptin' a few bruises. Mighty bad, ain't it?"

"Considerable. Still there's one thing can be said. This has finally got to be a wide-open town."

A Long Waiting List

"Are you one of those who think every man has his price?"

"No, sir. I know a lot of men who are still waiting to get theirs."

Mighty Few

Nevertheless, things might be worse than they are. Few women would pay to get into a theatre merely to see a lot of boys dancing with bare legs.

We Respectfully Offer a Suggestion

It Having Been Demonstrated That There Is a Limit to the Capacity of Even the Most Modern Newspaper Presses, We Again Advise Our Friends to Order the Sunday American Beforehand.

Readers of the Sunday AMERICAN will tomorrow enjoy a thrilling one-act drama, written by a world-famous author, twenty-four hours before its first presentation on any stage.

The playlet is a "war drama." Its author is Mr. Hall Caine, celebrated author of "The Deemster," "The Bondsman," "The Christian," and "The Eternal City." The object of the play is to illustrate the effect of the iron rule of blind obedience upon the best type of German soldier. The name of the play is "The Iron Hand." It will be performed on Monday next, for the first time, at a charitable performance in the Coliseum, London.

The Master of Grecha Castle, never a writer of the namby pamby, in "The Iron Hand" gives us a twenty-minute glimpse of war as terrible, as awful, as if his stage were gun-littered and gore-covered.

Place—The Chateau Lambotte on the River Yser, somewhere between Fernes and Dixmude.

Time—A year after the beginning of the present war.

Scene—The hall of the Chateau. It is night.

The author introduces a German captain, a German lieutenant, a German sergeant, the Baroness Lambotte, Nadine Lambotte, her young daughter-in-law, Captain Victor Lambotte of the Belgian army, Private Jonniaux and Father Liebrecht, a Belgian priest.

And, from the very beginning, action, thrills, suspense, with—particularly if you are "for" the Allies—a wonderfully happy ending.

The great Manxman, who has been entertaining the English-speaking world ever since he came to London more than thirty years ago by way of Liverpool, is now in his sixty-third year. He has NEVER displayed his dramatic genius to better advantage than in this little play which London is to see on Monday, for the first time, and which New Englanders may read tomorrow in their favorite Sunday newspaper.

BROCKTON will want the Sunday AMERICAN to read Mr. Bert Ford's report of the great religious revival now in progress in the no-license but—nevertheless—somewhat "damp" shoe city. Mr. Ford's story, with its suggestion that there is drink to be had in Brockton, that the drug habit is not entirely unknown there, and that the Plymouth County metropolis has at least heard of white slavery, surprised us. It MAY surprise you. It will startle, but it will not surprise, Brockton.

WORCESTER COUNTY will be interested in the first message that has come from a Worcester County man at Lake Forest, Ill., since the arrest there of young Will Orpet.

Orpet, held at Waukegan as a result of the death of his high school girl sweetheart, is a native of Lancaster, the oldest of all the towns of Worcester County. Lancaster believes in him. A Lancaster man has just paid him a visit at Waukegan. The Sunday AMERICAN will print this Lancaster man's report. Special articles on the tragic death of Marian Lambert, and the lessons to be drawn therefrom, have been prepared by Ella Wheeler Wilcox and Ada Patterson.

PROVIDENCE will read the Sunday AMERICAN for an exclusive story of the latest development in the Mohr case.

ONLY in the Sunday AMERICAN will Eastern Massachusetts find the complete story of the Bay State Street Railway Company and its grab for a six-cent fare. In track mileage the Bay State, stretching all the way from Newport in Rhode Island to Nashua in New Hampshire, is the largest street railway system in the world. In the course of a year it carries 205,306,585 passengers.

While the case of the Bay State before the Public Service Commission and the Legislature drags along, in a way somehow reminiscent of Dickens, and "Bleak House," and Jarndyce v. Jarndyce, the AMERICAN will continue to turn on the light. Tomorrow's Bay State story will discuss THIS proposition:

That a large part of the mileage of the Bay State Company is unproductive, consisting of down-at-the-heels street railways merged with better street railways in order that those who controlled the stock of the poorer lines might receive, in exchange, valuable stock of the better roads—thus robbing the stockholders of the better railways and placing upon the public the burden of poor service. Earnings of the good roads, which should have gone into improved service, better cars, better time and faster cars, have been diverted to pay dividends upon stock issued to take up the stock of non-paying street railways.

In thousands of Greater Boston homes interest is still keen in this six-cent fare grab. SOME homes, should this grab be successful, will be called upon to pay the grabbers $50 a year. Suppose your TAXES should suddenly be "hysted" $50 a year!

We respectfully recommend this Sunday AMERICAN Bay State Railway expose to all our friends in Bay State territory. It may be of service to the Public Service Commissioners, and the honorable members of the General Court. It tells the truth. It can be read without constant interruption by a flock of attorneys, high-priced, low-priced or medium-priced.

One of the greatest cartoonists of all time, Mr. Winsor McCay, has drawn a half-page picture for the editorial section. The cartoon was meant to illustrate an editorial. It is an editorial!

William Waldorf Astor—call him "Baron" Astor now, please—is seen kneeling at the feet of King George. From the windows of Astor tenements in the United States tenants are seen throwing their gold across the ocean into W. W. Astor's pockets.

May we quote a bit from the editorial which accompanies the Winsor McCay cartoon?

This year Astor pays to the British Government more than one million dollars of income tax, to keep up the British army and navy.

In America we MUST have a great navy.

Part of its duty will be to protect Mr. Astor's houses on Manhattan Island.

And the thought of the citizens who pay for THAT navy will be the possibility of war with the greatest fleet in the world, which is the fleet of England.

So you have Astor, taking out of New York City many millions a year, now giving more than a million dollars of the money to build up the British navy that this country may some day have to fight.

An interesting picture, is it not?

Once in a blue moon the Sunday AMERICAN prints TWO editorials. The subject of tomorrow's second editorial is "Mr. Wilson's Remarkable Record as a Political Weather Vane!" Mr. McCay has drawn a striking picture for this editorial, too.

The magazine section is by long odds the best in at least five years—it GROWS better, week by week—but here we are, with hardly room enough left to mention the snippy, snappy, snuppy pictures of the Dolly Sisters, on the cover page, and a wonderfully informing article on Page 2, entitled "Why So Many Men Prefer to Remain Bachelors."

While we have not enumerated here more than one tenth of one per cent. of the "features" of the Sunday AMERICAN, we MUST have convinced you that you cannot be without it.

Take a tip from Father. Speak, today, to your regular newsdealer; for, as sure as puss is a cat, at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the newsdealers will be "all sold out" of New England's greatest Sunday newspaper.
